Recapture of Philippines Planned at Conference

Allied Strategy Includes Route By Sea to China

Thousands of Men, Big Fleet, Needed

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
WASHINGTON, Dec. 2 (AP)—The Cairo conference is believed here to have agreed on a high strategy against Japan which provides, in its present phase, for recapturing the Philippines and opening a sea route to China.

Over this route the United States and Britain, principally, must arrange to ship more than 1,000,000 tons of supplies a month if they are to maintain and operate a minimum offensive force of as much as 100,000 men, and that would allow an air force of only 200 bombers and 400 fighters. Every multiple of these forces would require roughly another 1,000,000 tons of shipping a month to cover the thousands of miles to China.

Consider Jap Offensive
Yet until this route can be established and an aerial assault launched from China, American military and naval men say, there can be no final grand offensive against Japan proper.

It is for this reason, they add, that plans for stepped up action in the Pacific and Asia must always be balanced by an understanding of the time and cost involved.

Developing this theme at his press conference today, Secretary of War Stimson, obviously having in mind the Cairo meeting, said he looked for an accelerated offensive against Japan but warned that the reconquest of enemy-held territory would be long and expensive.

Japs Are Tough Problem
One well-informed officer says it would take at least eighteen months to smash Japan after Germany is defeated. Others speculate on two years. If the war against Germany should be won this winter — a possibility for exploration by Roosevelt and Churchill in their presumably current meeting with Marshal Stalin — the war with Japan now may be about half over. For the United Nations engaged, except China, it becomes two years old next Tuesday.

It is characteristic of the interdependent nature of the "two wars" — as dramatized in the successive conferences with Chiang and Stalin — that there can be no plan for pressing home a victory over Japan until victory has been won in Europe.

This suggests that the purpose of holding the two conferences so close together was to integrate, at least in general terms, a global rather than a European or a Pacific strategy. Why the Pacific meeting was held first, or at least announced first, has not been disclosed. It could have been the result of accident or design.

Political Aims Clearer
Nonetheless it has cleared up the political aims of the Pacific Allies and produced agreement on military operations, prior to the meeting with Stalin, so that Tokyo must be concerned over Russia's interest in what occurred and whether Russia may eventually be influenced by it. After two years Russia still is the great mystery of the Pacific.

Baltimore Faces Dry Christmas

BALTIMORE, Dec. 2 (AP)—I. William Shimmel, executive secretary of the Maryland Institute of Wine and Spirits Distributors, Inc., disclosed today that the organization was considering a "moratorium" on wholesale liquor deliveries in Baltimore until after Christmas.

The official said a meeting would be called next week to consider supply and distribution and indicated it was probable institute members would set a date for stopping deliveries until Dec. 26.

The date, he said, probably would be between Dec. 15 and Dec. 18.

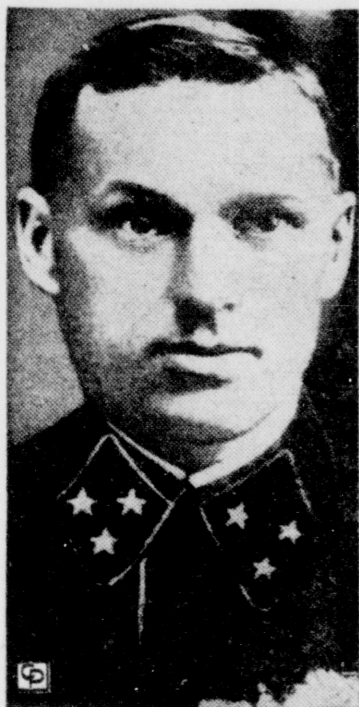

A spokesman for the industry declared package stores would be "left high and dry" without stocks if such action were taken.

Kiss Sends Sailor, Girl to Hospital

ST. PAUL, Dec. 2 (AP)—A kiss sent a sailor and a girl to a hospital.

Police said David Steele, 24, on leave from Portsmouth, Va., leaned over to kiss Miss Florence O'Brien, 22, St. Paul, as she was driving them home today and the car skidded 150 feet, clipped off a lamp post and sent both to a hospital for treatment of injuries.

Postwar Freedom For Germans May Be Parley Plan

No Enslavement, Report Asserts

By RICHARD G. MASSOCH

LONDON, Dec. 2 (AP)—A fortnight promise to grant Germany postwar freedom from slavery under any power, however heavily she must pay for the war, appears to be a possible result of the predicted conference of President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin.

Vital decisions for the defeat of Germany, abolition of Hitlerism in Europe, the future of Germany and her satellites and possibly a settlement of the differences between Poland and Russia, were forecast in these reports.

Predict Proclamation

German and neutral commentators predict the conference will be followed by a proclamation from the Allied leaders to the German people calling on them to drop out of the war, with a threat of intensified air attacks if the war continues.

They expect a similar demand of the satellite states to withdraw their troops from the fighting fronts and to break their alliance with Berlin.

The attitude of neutral Turkey is another possible subject of discussion, since British Foreign Secretary Eden talked with Turkish Foreign Minister Numan Menemencioğlu in Cairo after his Moscow conference with United States Secretary of State Hull and Soviet Foreign Commissar Molotov.

Consider Turkey's Aid

Turkey's entrance into the war on the side of the Allies, regarded as increasingly possible, would raise new strategic aspects for consideration.

There were indications that Stalin might stand on a mere token occupation of Germany by the Red army.

As unofficially envisaged in London, any "big three" declaration might assure the German people, as Stalin already has done, that the Allies are not fighting them but their Nazi masters. It might assert:

Big Three Declaration

1. The United Nations have no intention of annihilating Germany, but only her power of aggression.

2. Germany may retain roughly her 1919 boundaries, but, like Japan, will be stripped of all conquests.

Drew Pearson Directed To Explain Charges Involving Senator George

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2 (AP)—The Senate Finance committee tonight directed Drew Pearson, Washington columnist, to appear before it tomorrow to explain a statement in his column that Ellsworth Alford, council for the United States Chamber of Commerce, "boasts that he has Senator George's vote on taxes in his pocket."

George (D-Ga.), said the committee which he heads asked Pearson to be present for an examination when Alford and other witnesses for the Chamber of Commerce are scheduled to testify on the pending $2,140,000,000 increased revenue bill.

Panicky Germans Rushing to Rome To Escape Allies

Yanks and British Announce Advances

By NOLAN NORGAARD
ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, ALGIERS, Dec. 2 (AP)—Demoralized German troops streamed back toward Rome in full retreat today from their shattered defenses near the Adriatic and began demolishing the key city of Cassino in the central sector as Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark's American Fifth Army joined in splintering the enemy's "winter line."

The four-day-old battlefield of Sangro ridge was littered with enemy dead and wounded and wrecked equipment. Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's victorious Eighth Army hammered at the withdrawing Nazis in comparatively open country, while hundreds of Allied warplanes worried the enemy from the sky.

Nazis in Full Retreat

"The Germans are in full retreat," declared a special Allied announcement that revealed the extent of the disaster to Field Marshal Albert Kesselring's forces. "Reinforcements are being brought up by the Germans from Northern Italy." Montgomery's warriors were pushing forward on approximately a 25-mile front in their greatest assault since El Alamein.

Allied reconnaissance pilots reported the Nazis were setting off huge explosions at Cassino in apparent preparation for abandoning that important stronghold. Cassino, only eight miles from the last reported Allied line, is on the Via Cassina, main highway to Rome eighty miles away.

(The Berlin radio in a broadcast recorded by the Associated Press said the American Fifth Army had launched large-scale attacks all along its front, supported at the coastal end by three destroyers.

At Castel Frenato, in front of Cassino, "the German lines were taken back to prepared positions in the rear," the Germans acknowledged, while they said strong American units had succeeded in penetrating the German defense system at Scapoli, in the same area.)

Demolitions Reported

The demolitions were observed after Allied air forces battered the twenty-mile German front guarding the Cassino area for three hours in one of the most concentrated attacks of the Italian campaign. At ten-minute intervals waves of warplanes swept over German gun emplacements and other defense works and smashed them into heaps of rubble.

Invasion and Warhawk fighter-bombers gave the Nazi positions the same type of pasting they gave Sangro ridge two days before to clear the way for Gen. Montgomery's assault on that mighty fortress. Hundreds of Nazi prisoners captured on Sangro ridge were "bombed happy" from this terrible aerial barrage.

Apparently anticipating an advance by the Fifth Army, the Germans launched two sharp counterattacks in the Pilgrano area four miles north of Venafro and another southwest of Mignano, but the Allied command reported that both were "completely repulsed."

A fourth American division, the veteran Thirty-fourth which gained fame by capturing notorious "Hill 609" in Tunisia, was identified as a part of Gen. Clark's army in Italy.

An indication of the serious plight of German troops fleeing before Montgomery's forces near the Adriatic was seen in reports that they were abandoning great quantities of equipment.

"No line of defense is left to the retreating Germans north of the Sangro river," said radio France in Algiers.

The Eighth army smashed forward as much as three miles yesterday, despite renewed rains, mine-

Submarine Wahoo Lost in Action, Navy Reports

Escort Carrier Is Also Missing

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2 (AP)—The heroic submarine Wahoo, which even the Axis admits was daring enough to sink Japanese ships at the rate of one a month, and the escort carrier Liscome Bay have fired their last shots.

The 1,525-ton Wahoo and its crew of sixty-five, winner of a presidential citation for action in the Pacific, was listed by the navy today as overdue and presumed to be lost, the fifteenth undersea casualty of the war.

Liscome Bay Torpedoed

The Liscome Bay fell victim to a Japanese submarine's torpedo Nov. 24 during the Gilbert Islands operations, the only U. S. vessel lost during the occupation of these strategic stepping stones.

The Berlin radio beat the navy to the announcement about the Wahoo and its broadcast said the submarine, commissioned eighteen months ago, had sunk nineteen Japanese vessels. In two successive patrols, the navy said last spring that the Wahoo got thirteen Jap ships.

Lieut. Commander Dudley Walker Morton, the skipper who too is gone, deprecated the feat at the time, observing it was "just sight, track, shoot and sink." Morton related how the crew heard a Japanese propaganda broadcast that the submarine menace had been erased, "then we got nine ships in seven days."

Destroyed Warship

Under Morton the Wahoo accounted for more than 70,000 tons of Japanese shipping. On one venture he guided the sub into Wewak harbor, using a twenty-five-cent atlas, and sent a torpedo into a destroyer which cracked in two and went down. The 36-year-old skipper, a resident of Miami, Fla., was a native of Owensboro, Ky.

The navy did not list the casualties involved in the loss of the Liscome Bay.

Rear Admiral Henry M. Mullinix of Attica, Ind., task force commander previously reported missing, was aboard the Liscome Bay, the navy disclosed in reporting the ship's loss. Today, Captain Irving W. Wiltse, Riverside, N. J., commander of the Liscome Bay, also is missing.

Details Withheld

There were other casualties but the navy did not announce the number nor the normal complement of the Liscome Bay, a type of carrier developed since the war and designed primarily to provide air protection for convoys.

It was the first announced loss of a carrier of that type, and the first announced loss of a carrier since the Hornet was sunk in the battle of Santa Cruz Oct. 24-25 of last year. Three battle type carriers, in addition to the Hornet, were lost in the first year of the war. These losses have been more than replaced in the doubling of the navy since Pearl Harbor. Secretary Knox said last week that the navy had over forty carriers.

Editors Protest British Methods Of Handling News

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2 (AP)—American editors formally protested to the White House tonight and the director of United States war information lodged a complaint with the British government over the handling of the news of the Cairo tri-power conference.

Both complaints criticized Reuters, British news agency. Reuters sprang part of the story out of Lisbon, Portugal, and for more than twenty-four hours thereafter other editors with the full official communique in hand were pledged to secrecy on it.

Roy A. Roberts, managing editor of the Kansas City Star and president of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, wired the White House and OWI:

Roberts Protests

"I am entering an earnest protest against the manner in which the release of the Cairo conference was handled and especially against the treatment accorded the accredited American war correspondents assigned to this important story.

"The whole episode hurts the war effort. Our war correspondents have too fine a record of devotion and sacrifice in this war in keeping the public at

27,481 Americans Killed in Action

Casualties Total More Than 126,969

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2 (AP)—The war to date has cost the United States 126,969 military casualties, 27,481 of them killed in action.

Secretary of War Stimson announced today that army casualties from the start of the war to November 15 totaled 94,918, while figures compiled by the navy reported 32,051 casualties for the navy, marine corps and coast guard through last week.

The navy figures did not include losses in the Gilbert Islands where 1,092 men were killed and 2,680 wounded. All but a few being marines shot down on Tarawa. The army total apparently included only part of the casualties suffered by American units of the Fifth Army in Italy—Stimson said these units from the beginning of operations on the Italian mainland have lost 1,811 killed, 7,091 wounded and 2,670 missing.

Stimson also reported that 1,610 American soldiers taken prisoner have died in enemy prison camps, most of them in Japanese-occupied territory. So far, the War department has published the names of 1,555 who died in Japanese prison camps.

The over-all casualty figure of 126,969 was divided as follows:

Killed: Navy 10,663, marine corps 2,181, coast guard 316, Army 14,321, total 27,481.

Wounded: Navy 3,061, marine corps 2,661, coast guard 78, army 32,690, total 38,490.

Missing in action: Navy 8,248, marine corps 637, coast guard 41, army 24,490, total 33,416.

Prisoners of war: Navy 2,276; marine corps 1,948, coast guard 1, army 23,417, total 27,642.

Germans Balked In Attempts To Use French Fleet

By WES GALLAGHER
ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, ALGIERS, Dec. 2 (AP)—A German attempt to use scuttled French fleet units at Toulon was thwarted in the American heavy bomber raid on that big base Nov. 24, with at least five refueled warships sunk and five smaller ones probably sunk in "one of the most severe blows ever dealt a naval base by air attack," the fifteenth air force disclosed tonight.

The American air command disclosed these results of the Toulon raid, based on new photo reconnaissance, along with announcement of another smash against Nazi submarine warfare, a Flying Fortress raid today on new U-boat installations at Marseille.

JAP TRANSPORT, BIG TANKER SUNK; TWO DESTROYERS HIT

By WILLIAM F. BONI

SOUTHWEST PACIFIC ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Friday, Dec. 3 (AP)—A loaded 10,000 ton Japanese transport and a large tanker were destroyed and two destroyers damaged by alert Allied reconnaissance planes which spotted a sudden increase in enemy shipping activity off Kavieng, New Ireland, headquarters reported today.

The attacks occurred the night of Nov. 30 and the morning of Dec. 1.

Make Two Direct Hits

Fifth Airforce Liberators opened the assault on a convoy consisting of two destroyers, the transport, a large whaling ship and two unidentified vessels, moving northwest toward Kavieng. After two direct hits were scored on the transport, heavy explosions occurred and its human cargo abandoned it before it sank.

Several hours later, two United States Navy Catalinas on separate patrols scored bombing successes at almost the same moment.

One spotted two destroyers, scoring a direct hit on each with 500 pound bombs. One was hit amidships, the other on the stern. The Catalina crew was unable to observe if either warship sank.

The other Catalina located between ten and twelve good sized ships in a formation forty-five miles southwest of Kavieng and selected the large tanker for a target. Direct hits set the tanker afire and the flames could be seen for fifty miles.

Kill 200 Japanese

One the ground front, American troops infiltrated behind enemy lines near the Allied beachhead at Empress Augusta bay on Bougainville in the Northern Solomons and killed 200 Japanese in a night attack.

Enemy arms, ammunition and supplies were destroyed in this raid. On the Huon peninsula of New Guinea, Australians attacked the Japanese inland jungle position of Wareo northwest of Finschhafen from three sides after seizing the Song river bridge.

More than 300 miles to the northwest, Liberators dropped 111 tons of bombs on supply dumps at Wewak. Ten enemy interceptors were downed. Two of the Liberators were lost to anti-aircraft fire.

Bomb Borgen Bay

On the western end of New Britain Island, just east of Cape Gloucester, Allied planes hit Borgen bay with fifty-four tons of explosives.

OPA Figures Backing Food Subsidy Plan Challenged at Senate Hearing

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2 (AP)—Office of Price Administration estimates that cancellation of food subsidies might cost consumers $9,000,000,000 in higher living costs in 1944, were challenged today by some members of the Senate Banking committee.

Administrator Chester A. Bowles told the committee that abolition of subsidy controls on food prices would upset the delicate balance of prices and wages and probably cause at least a 10 per cent boost in over-all living next year — "the equivalent," he said, "of a ten per cent sales tax on the consumer."

Germans Report Heavy RAF Blow Against Capital

30 Bombers Shot Down, Nazis Say

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR

LONDON, Friday, Dec. 3 (AP)—Allied bombers raided Berlin again last night and thirty were shot down, a Nazi radio broadcast said today, indicating that another heavy RAF blow had been directed against the German capital.

Berlin had been raid free since last Friday after three massive assaults last week wrecked a third of the city.

The first intimation of a new attack came when a radio blackout developed on the continent early last night after RAF Mitchells, Boston and Typhoons smashed at enemy targets on the Cherbourg peninsula in daylight.

Berlin Sounds Alert

A Stockholm dispatch earlier said an alert had been sounded in Berlin, and for ninety minutes telephone communications between Stockholm and the German capital were broken.

The daylight bombers, escorted by fighters, carried out their missions without loss. The operations followed the second successive American heavy bomber attack on the Rhineland industrial city of Solingen and a sweep by United States Marauders against Nazi airfields in Northern France and Belgium yesterday.

Marseille Attacked

From numerous Nazi-controlled stations came reports of the first air attack of the war on the French Mediterranean port of Marseille, carried out earlier today by heavy bombers of the northwest African air force.

A Vichy transmission recorded by the Federal Communications Commission said this attack caused some thirty casualties and one of the raiders crashed into a building.

Reports from Sweden said fires still were flickering in Berlin as the Nazis—given an uneasy breather of rapid-fire night-work—worked wearily among the ruins.

The Germans tried a daylight raid against England but coastal guns shot down one of two attacking planes.

It was one of the largest German planes seen over England in daylight in over a year. The new fighter-bombers the Germans are using for night raids are two-place planes and are regarded as no-so imitations of Britain's famous Mosquito.

Cassidy Reports New Nazi Attacks

MOSCOW, Dec. 3 (AP)—Strong new German counter-attacks sprang up today in the Cherkassy sector between Kiev and Dnepropetrovsk, where the Red army's latest bridgehead was established west of the Dnieper river.

German tank and infantry forces launched the assault in that sector of the Ukraine, field divisions said tonight, after earlier counterattacks farther north regained Zhitomir and Korosten, but were finally repulsed.

American Officer, Prisoner in Germany, Is Classified I-A

BALTIMORE, Dec. 2 (AP)—George D. Hurley, 46-year-old merchant marine officer formerly of Baltimore, no doubt would like to answer the summons from his selective service board but he would have a difficult time of it in his present position.

The seaman's brother, Patrolman J. Hurley, of Chelsea, Mass., said that Hurley has been a prisoner of war in Germany for the past two years.

Receiving no answers to questionnaires and notices mailed to the man, the Baltimore draft board automatically classified him as I-A, subject to immediate induction in the armed forces.

Martin Mars Turned Over to the Navy

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2 (AP)—The Martin Mars, the world's largest flying boat, has completed preliminary tests by the navy's trial board and has been turned over to the naval air transport service.

Following additional tests, the transport service plans to use the huge plane to transport men and material to distant war areas, the navy said today.

Building Program Approved by Board

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Dec. 2.—The Maryland Board of Public Works approved a postwar program of building construction for the state amounting to $9,355,954, in a meeting with Governor O'Connor today.

The governor said that $4,398,150 of the total allocation would be appropriated immediately in order that architects might begin drawing the blueprints.

The postwar plan calls for the construction of additional state hospitals and public schools.

Additional hospitals are considered necessary by the board in view of the appeals recently made by the directors of the state's mental institutions that there are more cases of mentally ill persons in Maryland than there are beds to accommodate them.

It's the doors of bomber hangars that need insulation in that climate—and plenty of it, judging from a rush order the B. F. Goodrich industrial products division received, calling for 18,000 feet of special four-ply belting material. The material specified was seven and a half inches wide, in contrast to the inch-or-less thickness of ordinary household caulking used in the temperate zone.

Dirksen Seeking GOP Nomination; Democrats Silent

By JACK BELL
WASHINGTON, Dec. 2 (AP)—The entry of Rep. Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois into the race for the Republican presidential nomination draws attention to the contrasting scarcity of Democratic candidates caused by party leaders' failure thus far to learn whether President Roosevelt plans to seek a fourth term.

Dirksen's announcement today, backed by a petition signed by thirty-six members of Congress urging him to run, put him into a race where Wendell L. Willkie, the 1940 nominee, has come to be regarded as a certain entry along with Governor John W. Bricker of Ohio, who announced, and former Governor Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota, whose name will be before Nebraska voters in a preferential primary.

Democrats Inactive
The Republicans have many other potential candidates but no Democrat of national stature has stepped forward yet to announce that he will run for the presidency.

Possible candidates hope, however, that this situation will be cleared up in the next few months, either by Mr. Roosevelt's announcement of his plans or his failure to say anything about a fourth term.

They argue that if the president does not intend to seek re-election, he will say so relatively early in 1944 so that his party will have an opportunity before its national

On the other hand, most of those who keep tabs on party affairs are convinced that if the president says nothing for several months about his future plans, it will be a clear indication that he intends to run but won't make that fact known until convention time.

In announcing his candidacy, Dirksen told a press conference he does not plan to enter any state primaries. He noted that the vote in the Illinois preferential primary is not binding on delegates to the convention.

Disclosing that he would file for re-election to the House, Dirksen said he definitely was running for the presidential nomination, adding, "I'm not serving as the confederate of anybody."

"My political ambitions are not very deep," he said. "My work in the House is very congenial. I'm interested primarily in what I can do for my country, what I can contribute to the public welfare."

Willkie commented in Chicago that Dirksen is "a fine fellow." He repeated previous statements that he would "like nothing better" than to see Col. Robert R. McCormick, publisher of the Chicago Tribune, enter the Illinois preferential primary next April. Willkie said he would "enter the primary in twenty-four hours after McCormick does."

Sergeant Home With Hair-Raising Stories of War

BALTIMORE, Dec. 2 (P)—Captured by the Germans, imprisoned on a ship, rescued by a beautiful French girl named "Fifene" . . . That's the story of Sgt. Charles Fletcher, 24-year-old Baltimorean.

The story began in 1936, when Fletcher enlisted in the army. He went overseas in August, 1942, then:

"I was in five major battles—Oran, the invasion; Kasserine Pass; El Guetar; 'Hill 609'—that's where I got a skunk of shrapnel; 'Hill 502' and a lot of minor battles like Gabes, Medjez El Bab.

"Then I got captured. Can't tell you how it happened, but I landed in the midst of the Hermann Goering division—Germans all over the place.

"They took me to a prison camp. But we didn't stay. They loaded us on an Italian ship to take us to Germany—300 of us down in the hold.

Bombed by Allies

"Then we heard airplanes—then an explosion—the ship shivered from stem to stern. xxx We realized we were bombed by Allied aircraft. xxx As the ship took the punishing attack—three times a day for three days xxx we were holding on for our lives and praying those fliers would catch on and let up on us."

Then the ship sank, the prisoners escaped, and headed for the coast of Africa and the French rescued them. "They took us all to Carthage. We were no longer prisoners of war but we were in a pretty tight spot," Fletcher related. "Two of us got to La Goulette, near Tunis.

"But Tunis still belonged to the Germans. My friend and I, a boy from Brooklyn, N. Y., were lucky. Fifene took us to her cellar and sheltered us for three days.

Befriended by Girl

"Fifene was a French girl, pretty, too—a fine girl. She used to bring food down to us in the cellar and tell us what was going on outside. The Germans were moving out to Cap Bon.

"We could hear shells bursting and bullets pinging outside. One day we heard a rumble and we looked out and saw American tanks coming down the street.

"Was I glad? Boy, that was the happiest day of my life."

The sergeant had already recovered, when captured, from the wounds he suffered at El Guetar. But he said he was blinded in one eye by flashes from shells in the Mediterranean, and so was given a medical discharge.

He was given the Purple Heart and the Silver Star, the latter for gallantry above the call of duty.

Now he's getting ready to join the Baltimore county police department, his eye is getting much better, and:

In his wallet he still carries pictures of Fifene.

Three-Power Parley
Quite Gratifying

WHILE the news of the North African conference held by Roosevelt, Churchill and Chiang Kai Shek was robbed of its dramatic punch after a great build-up as the result of its premature release overseas, its accomplishment is as gratifying as it is logical.

Outstanding, of course, is the political phase, wherein agreement was made to smash Japan into utter defeat and then to compel it to return all of the properties it has stolen by aggression. Thus western civilization purposes to right the wrongs
it has permitted to accumulate in the Far East over a long period, timely rectification of which might have averted the war in that area, although it is perhaps just as well that this inevitable show-down has come at last to end the Yellow Peril which in the present circumstances so long menaced that part of the globe and the peace of the world.

The agreement on the deserved fate of the Japanese is gratifying in that it is based on justice and on humanitarian and democratic principles in place of racial hatreds and rivalries. They have proved their utter worthlessness as empire builders and governors.

But of equal significance have been the military plans which were laid at the conference, the details of which cannot of course be revealed, but which in the light of the agreement on Japan and the progress of the war program in general must have been of vast import.

Altogether, the conference results make for greater solidarity among the United Nations with greater assurance of an unprecedented unity of command for the remainder of the war against Japan.

What is now awaited with great expectations on the part of Americans as well as the people of the other United Nations is the news of the results of the conference of the three-power conferees with Marshal Stalin. This is of tremendous importance and the hope is held on the basis of the success achieved in North Africa and on the battle fronts that it will prove equally gratifying, that these results combined with those already attained will serve to shorten the war and bring the aggressors to their just fate.

Yes, the Raw Deal
Is on the Way Out

FURTHER SUBSTANTIAL CORROBO-RATION of the predictions frequently made of late that the New Deal—more properly
the Raw Deal—is at last on its way out was provided by the special election held this week in the Fourth congressional district of Kentucky, which only three weeks earlier elected a Republican governor and other major state officials after an interval of sixteen years.

At this special election the Republican nominee, Chester O. Carrier, was chosen by the astounding plurality of 12,600 over J. Dan Talbott, Democrat, thus giving the state its second Republican member of the present House. Carrier won all but two of the nineteen counties, one of the latter being lost by only five votes and the other being the Democrat's home county.

The results are all the more impressive when compared with the usual Democratic plurality in the district, as it represents a turnover of close to 30,000 votes out of around some 90,000 cast.

Such a turnover in such a place indicates beyond all cavil that the people have become alarmed as well as discontent over the injustices, the mismanagement, the waste and the general ineptitude of the administration and are set in their intentions to turn it out. Harrison E.
Soangler, Republican national chairman,
hits the nail smack on the head by declaring that regardless of Roosevelt's intentions about a fourth term the Republicans will sweep the country in the next election.

War-time Damage
By Small Sawmills

REPORT is made by an exchange that hundreds of small sawmills are stripping the land of trees all over the South, particularly in the eastern pineland areas of the Carolinas and in Georgia, Alabama and Florida.

It seems that war conditions have brought an insatiable demand for the products of these portable sawmills, which are known as "peckerwoods," and they are busily engaged in producing railroad cross-ties, pulpwod and slash for use in making glycerine for high explosives and for other war needs.

An interesting commentary on the situation is given in a dispatch from Myrtle-wood, Ala., quoting a small-time sawmill operator. "I'm getting big money for the sorriest pine I ever looked at," he is quoted as saying. "Two years ago I was broke. Now I'm running that mill, working fifty-five men. My chief worry is: Where'll I find timber to cut when this part of the country is cleaned out, which will be in about six months?"

While wartime demands must be met,
there is an ominous warning in this report,
which is that the cleaning out of these woodlands will inevitably result in problems of floods, erosion and poverty. Modern conservation methods required in all too meager measure by legislation call for selective cutting and reforestation to replace such losses. In the South vast areas of washed-out, gullied land resulting from unrestrained sawmill operations, have been reclaimed for the growing of slash pine as a crop.

Since farmers are held within strict limitations on about every activity in which they are engaged, even in wartime, it seems queer why the small sawmill operators as well as the landowners involved are not likewise restrained at least to the extent of providing some replacement. At any rate, what damage is caused here by the war should be speedily remedied. The lesson of better forest conservation is further impressed by the situation thus reported and it should be heeded not only in the South but elsewhere.

Taxing Efforts
Are Misdirected

SECRETARY MORGENTHAU and his
"experts" continue to rail and howl at the amount of money which is being spent in this country and to insist that it be checked
by way of heavier taxation.

The main trouble of Morgenthau and his so-called experts is that they fail to recognize the fact that many millions of Americans are not participating in this spending orgy. In consequence all their taxing plans are directed not at the spending but at the savings of the people.

Those who are not engaged in the spending are hard-working, thrifty and frugal people whose incomes have either remained static or have declined. Even those whose incomes have remained unchanged actually have experienced a decrease in them by reason of the increased cost of living. Their debts and other fixed obligations have not gone lower and they have less to spend for fancy things. Whatever they have accumulated, however, is represented by savings and these appear to be the object of the treasury fellows instead of the loose money that is being spent.

Congress has done the right thing by failing to respond to the demand of the Treasury for a huge increase in taxes, but it has done quite the wrong thing by continuing to plaster inexcusable taxes upon the thrifty and at the same time letting those who have received swollen war incomes to enjoy the better end of them.

And while the Treasury and Congress are aiming at the savings of the people instead of their spendings, they are at the same time aiming not at the causes of war inflation but at the safeguards against postwar deflation.

It seems high time for an awakening to a realization of these cold facts of the case.

Only three out of every ten persons know what free enterprise is, according to a "public opinion" poll. The other seven, presumably, know what a check from Washington looks like.

Newspapers being distributed to the German people by American bombers are a free-will offering and carrier boys will not be around each Saturday to collect.

A seer says the world will come to an end at 8 o'clock Christmas morning, leading to conjecture as to why he couldn't have put it off until after dinner.

Scared Cat

By MARSHALL MASLIN

I know him. So do you.
He blusters and swaggers and has a red face. He growls and he snorts. . . . He bullies his way down the highway and can't bear to see anyone pass him. If there's a short jam at the corner he honks his horn and curses. . . .
He snarls at waiters and orders them around.
Complains of the service—yes, even in war time.

Kicks about the food. Tips with a growl.

Nothing pleases him. He insists on the best all the time. Talks about the "common people" as "saps" and "suckers." Sometimes when his stomach is full and he's just put over a deal, he talks genially to those he considers his equals and condescends to those he considers his inferiors.

He divides humanity nicely into those below and those above. He bears down on the people beneath him, kneels to those who have more money and power.

At home he's the boss. He thinks he is a good husband and a fair father—but his family has other ideas.

In fact, he considers himself a Strong Man,
who has made a success and fears nothing.
But he's mistaken!

He is afraid of the most important thing—
Life. Secretly—and he will confess this to no one, even to himself, he is not at ease with living. He blusters because he is afraid. He swells his chest because he does not know how to be at home with people. His contempt for his "inferiors" is a self-defense. His swagger is a pose. He is lonely—he is a Scared Cat.

Whom am I describing? Not any one man,
I admit! But I'm thinking of a considerable number of men whom I have known and of almost anyone of us when we are afraid and will not admit we have lost our way, will not confess we are lonely and frightened children who don't know how to act. There's a Scared Cat in most of us, but when life gets him by the tail he pretends to be a Terrible Tiger. And sometimes he succeeds; and sometimes he makes a mess of his life.

Biggest War News Story of Year Is Seen Just Ahead

By CENTRAL PRESS

WASHINGTON—The year 1943,
now fast drawing to a close, probably will go down as the biggest news year of the war.

There were the Casablanca and Quebec conferences. The United States and British armies cleared the Axis out of Africa. They smashed out the Axis stronghold of Sicily, reduced Sardinia and Corsica, and invaded the continent of Europe
via the toe of the Italian boot.

Russia turned the tables on Germany, stopped
the German summer offensive cold
and have driven the German armies in headlong retreat all the way back through the Ukraine nearly to the old Russian border of Poland.

Then, recently, came the meeting
at Moscow between United States
Secretary of State Cordell Hull, British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and Russian Foreign Commissary Vyacheslav Molotov. Both Hull and Eden conferred with Stalin and set the pattern for future progress of the war against Germany and on the restoration of Axis occupied countries after an Allied victory.

Biggest News Coming

But the biggest news of 1943 has not yet been told. It is in the making, however. Its nature will be another great turning point in World War II for the Allied nations.
The world will read about it in smashing headlines before Christmas.

If any date could be set this column's guess would be that Dec.
7 of this year will be a headache for Japan of proportions greater even than Tokyo's stab in the back at Pearl Harbor. This time the Allied nations will be at bat.

Liquor Drought Worries

Where's all the "likker"?

That's the $64 question now
when any two people get together.
Even Congress, with all its other worries, is asking about the sudden drought that has left nothing but wines and cheap rums on the shelves of most liquor stores. In fact, the scarcity of liquor, and the sudden evaporation of most known brands, has got under senatorial skins.

They want to know why you can't get even a bottle of anything short of "cooking whiskey" without a liquor seller being your best friend.

The senators are worried about the possible return of a condition
as bad as existed under prohibition when crime reached its highest peak in the nation's history.

Cracking Down Planned

The result: they plan to crack down on those responsible for the present situation. They propose:

1—An investigation by a subcommittee of the senate judiciary committee.

2—A proposal to cut from eight to four years the time in which liquor may be held under bond in warehouses free of tax.

Leaders of the investigation are Senators Scrugham (D), of Nevada, and Van Nuys (D), of Indiana,
chairman of the Senate Judiciary committee. Senator Walter George (D), of Georgia, chairman of the Finance committee, is behind the move to cut the tax-free time on bonded liquors in half. George wants to force more liquor out of warehouses. The Scrugham-Van Nuys inquiry promises to explode a lot of dynamite.

Jap Propaganda Pleasing

Army and navy officers in Washington are pleased with recent Japanese propaganda claims that their forces have scored smashing victories over Allied sea and air forces in the South and Southwest Pacific.

Japan always has exaggerated battle results in its own favor but never with such fantastic claims as those emanating recently from the Tokyo radio for home consumption and for the world.

One claim said that Adm. William
F. Halsey, Jr. recently lost his whole South Pacific fleet of 110 ships.
American losses for the entire war
are not much greater than that.

No one knows exactly what is in the Jap mind, but the best explanation offered by persons who should know is that the enemy is having trouble at home and is

Red Herring
In Oil

From the Wall Street Journal

According to a Washington dispatch to this newspaper's issue of Saturday, there is under consideration there a plan for the organization of a world oil cartel. And the project is in charge of—well, guess who. None other than Harold L.
Ickes, the old arch-foe of monopoly, trusts and special privilege.

Under the plan world oil resources would be pooled and put in charge of a joint committee of the United Nations. Peace loving nations could draw on the pool but oil would be denied aggressors, the assumption being that no nation would attempt war without an adequate oil supply and that no nation has sufficient oil reserves of its own to wage a war.

That is an idea in which there are so many holes that it is hardly necessary to point them out.
The lack of oil did not restrain Hitler, Mussolini or the Japs and if a nation is intent on war it will be restrained in the future. It seems other purposes.

THE WOLVES' AMBASSADOR

Gen. Somervell Is Disclosed as Guiding Factor behind the Dubious Canol Deal

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—The man the Truman committee is looking for behind the Canol deal is Lieut. Gen. Somervell, head of the Office of Service and Supply.

He is supposed to have been the guiding factor in the adoption of the project, but he has been out of the country for some time,
and the committee has been unable to get his testimony.

War Under-Secretary Patterson made no attempt to blame
the deal on Somervell in his testimony before the committee. Naturally, he defended
it because he had passed on it as Somervell's superior. The committee members learned of it only privately from other authorities.

The matter is of more importance than meets the eye because Somervell is head of the New Deal faction in the War Department, and has been mentioned as possible successor to Gen. Marshall as chief of staff, as Harry Hopkins's good friend.

This may or may not be one of the reasons why a report from the committee has been held up. The committee members are strong in their criticism of the project, despite the army defense of it. They call it a deal arranged by Standard Oil Company of Indiana and the Imperial Oil Company, apparently without much enthusiasm on the part of the Canadian company.

The current discussion over its feasibility probably never would have developed had not Oil Poo-bah Eckes stumbled upon information concerning it, quite by accident.

Committeemen suspect the oil eventually may cost a fabulous amount, perhaps $1.00 or $1.50 per gallon. Cost involves a 500-mile pipe line, drilling in the frozen North, and some evidence indicates oil from California could have been transported to the Alaska battle areas by inland waterways much cheaper.

The Republican election victory in the normally Democratic heart of Kentucky, the Fourth congressional district, forecasts the final breakup of the Happy Chandler machine. He lives in an adjoining county, and the Democratic candidate was his selectee. Whatever excuses, therefore, could be offered for the loss of the state in the earlier gubernatorial election on the ground the Chandler factions did not go along sufficiently, were not true to the Fourth district.

The election also was a conclusive response to some misinterpretation of this column who misinterpreted my analysis of the gubernatorial election as partisan Republican propaganda.

This election result certainly verifies the conclusion then expressed that the Democrats had failed to win under the best possible auspices in a state normally Democratic, and that the failure was due to the discouragement of the people with the New Deal and its regulations and domestic results, a condition

which cast into grave doubts Mr.
Roosevelt's re-election in 1944.

The margin of Republican victory
this time in the district was around 12,000 votes, compared with Democratic victories by a margin of 15-000 in 1940, 10,000 in 1938, and 17,000 in 1936—representing a turn-over of 27,000 votes in 90,000 cast.

The news of a thirty percent larger meat rationing allowance for this month only, was offered to the country as if it were a Christmas present of the OPA to the people.

Truth is, no other course was possible, or at least sensible, in view of stocks piled up in storage, due to price, labor and other government directed marketing conditions.

Beef storage as far back as October 1, totaled 112,000,000 pounds, about twice as much as the five-year average, and it has been increasing constantly. Pork stocks amounted to 361,000,000 pounds
the same day, about 51,000,000 above average. Same is true of frozen lamb, stocks amounting to 17,000-000 pounds, over three times the average.

More than half of these stocks are held by the government corporations, the rest being in the hands of private dealers.

We are not among those who would abolish at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning all federal bureaus set up in the last ten years. Moreover, we have high regard for the Civil Aeronautics Administration which performs many useful and necessary functions in maintaining order and promoting safety in American skies. But three envelopes from the CAA delivered in this office a few days ago have increased our feeling that even a bureau's right hand should know what the left is doing.

It was a small incident, but revealing. The three envelopes, sent without postage by the CAA as "official business," were addressed to this newspaper, with a second line directed to our Aviation Editor, one envelope bearing only his name, one his title, and one his name and title. Although they did not carry the number of our postal district—a requirement much impressed on nonofficial users of the mail just now—all came safely to the same desk. All contained the same material—"Flight Engineering Report No. 12.—The Effect of Air Temperature upon the Rate of Climb of an Airplane Equipped with a Constant Speed Propeller."

This report is being distributed to "those who may find it useful."
We tried it on a thirteen-year-old aviation enthusiast—that is the age
that can tell you about dihedrals and coefficients of lift—but he made nothing of the graphs and mathematical hieroglyphics. We doubt if even our erudite Aviation Editor will find more than one copy useful.

Yes, we know "there's a war on"
and it's hard to get good mailing clerks. We also know there is a paper shortage and many business houses are using envelopes twice.
But observing the bulk and character of the material with which official Washington seeks to enlighten us, we wonder if it knows there is a war on.

Justice for China
In Pacific Charter
Is Held Epochal

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—A charter for the Pacific, comparable to the Atlantic Charter, now has been promulgated to all the world by President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek. It is a program for waging war and a program for making peace.

China is to be a strong world power. No longer can there be any doubt that both Great Britain and the United States intend that China
shall be a powerful member of the family of nations instead of one of the weakest.

Russia is not a party as yet to the agreement but the wording of it leaves room for Russian participation when she enters the war against Japan. The official text not only provides for restoration of territories
to China but adds:

"Japan will also be expelled from all other territories which she has taken by violence and greed."

Inasmuch as the document specifically mentions the restoration of Formosa to China, reverting to events in the latter part of the last century, it may be taken to mean also that some of the places wrested from Russia in the Russo-Japanese war of 1904 may find their way back into Russian sovereignty.

Mandated Island Decision Welcome

The decision to take away the so-called mandated islands from the Japanese is welcome. No mention is made as to what country is to get these, but it goes without saying that the United States will ask for the mandate or trusteeship whereby these islands will be used for the military benefit of the new league of nations which is to maintain peace in the world after World War II is ended.

The announcement that Korea is to be granted her freedom and independence is a master stroke. To win the co-operation of the Koreans, who have been fighting against Japanese tyranny for many years, is of direct military benefit to our side. The Koreans will be valuable soldiers to use in the invasion of Japan. They have many scores to settle with the Japanese.

The new charter gives the Chinese people something to fight for. "It means that big Chinese armies can be mobilized and equipped and that the Chinese will have definite war aims. They are not only to get back Formosa and the Pescadores islands close to the Formosa coast,
but they are to get back Manchuria,
where Japan set up her rule and started the diplomatic and military moves that resulted in her joining the Axis powers.

Stimson Doctrines Upheld

The United States never recognized Japanese sovereignty in Manchuria, so the Pacific charter is in conformity with the doctrines laid down by Henry L. Stimson when he was secretary of state under President Hoover.

All through the occupied areas,
whether it be Burma, the Philippines, or the Netherlands East Indies, news of what China, Britain and the United States have agreed upon will be broadcast. It will stimulate resistance and give new hope. It shows that China is to be a primary factor in the maintenance of peace in the Far East and that under enlightened leadership she will take her rightful place in world councils. This is one of the points stressed by Wendell Willkie after his visit to China and Russia.

President Roosevelt's personal courage in once more taking a hazardous trip overseas will again

Russians Advance On Gornel Sector

Fresh Offensive Aimed at Minsk

By JAMES M. LONG

LONDON, Friday, Dec. 3 (P)—Powerful Red army forces smashing northwest of Gornel and threatening Zhitobin swept up more than eight villages and killed 1,500 Nazis Thursday, Moscow declared early today, while to the north the Germans reported a fresh Soviet offensive rolling down the Somolessk road to Orsha, apparently aimed at Minsk from the north-east.

The Russians were silent concerning a northern drive upon Minsk. White Russian capital, but a Berlin radio dispatch said it had pierced the German line at two points, cutting into secondary defenses.

Report New Gains

Russian troops carved out new gains on two other sectors, said Moscow communique recorded by the Soviet radio Monitor, and wiped out 1,000 Germans through "without consideration for large losses" in gain counter-attacks west of Cherkasy in the strategic Dnieper bulge.

To the south, Soviet forces plunged closer to the rail junction of Znamenska, key to lateral communications between the Dnieper bend and Kiev bulge. Moscow said they captured Dmitrovka and Fedorki, six and fifteen miles north of Znamenska, and other Nazi strongpoints in this push southwest of Kremenchuk. Four hundred Germans perished in this general sector, and twenty-seven tanks were wrecked, the early morning communique added.

A whole battalion of Nazis were reported wiped out along the lower Dnieper river, southwest of Zhitobin, as the Germans were routed from prepared positions.

Germans Desperate

The communique pictured desperate German efforts to roll back the Soviet bridgehead west of the Dnieper near Cherkasy, and said twenty-four Nazi tanks were wrecked in repeated enemy counter-attacks.

Again for the second day, the Russians made no mention of the bloody fighting in the Zhitomir-Korosten area west of Kiev, where some of the greatest tank battles of the war are said to be raging in deep mud.

The push closing in upon Zhitobin swept up prisoners and knocked out twenty-six enemy tanks, and army artillery flamed into action in one sector to bleed German strength in men and equipment, the war bulletin said.

The renewed surge northwest of Gornel by Gen. Constantine Rokossovsky rolled the Germans back despite rain, snow and mud, and the Russian army newspaper Red Star said Zhitobin, Moshyr, and Kalin-Kovchik on the Leningrad-Orsha rail line were in danger of being outflanked, and could not hold out much longer.

The Russians threw in a heavy tank and infantry assault farther north on the Smolensk-Orsha road just inside the White Russian borders, a Vichy broadcast declared.

CUMBERLAND SAILOR'S CREW MEMBER ON GRIPSHOLM

A Cumberland sailor, Arthur Earl Dordill, Jr., son of Mrs. Goldie M. Dordill, 17 West First street, is a member of the crew of the exchange ship Gripsholm which arrived Wednesday in New York bringing a party of 1,500 American and Canadian prisoners of war and civilian internees back from the Far East.

Dordill, a signalman, second class, will arrive here Sunday to spend a fifteen-day furlough with his mother. He enlisted here September 8, 1941 and has been on active duty since.

Dordill was reported missing in action in January after his ship was torpedoed near Brazil. He and his companions lived for thirty days on one of the ship's rafts. After the raft struck a sand bar, Dordill was thrown into the sea and was finally washed ashore. He was rescued on the beach by natives who took him by boat to Brazil.

The local sailor was taken to Miami, Fla., by plane and was treated in the hospital for five weeks. Following his release from the hospital he was given a twenty-three day leave and has been on active duty since.

Two brothers are now in the service. Frederick B. Dordill is now stationed in a field artillery unit in Columbia, S. C., while another brother Charles Edward, will leave today for Baltimore to begin active training as an aviation cadet. The Rev. Leo Warner Hewitt, 10 New Hampshire avenue, a passer on the Gripsholm, will arrive here Sunday.

without cost to the treasury, the huge amount of advertising space and time required to reach and convince 130,000,000 people. By this means we are amply reaching all the important markets that would be available through this subsidy. The added impact, if there is any, would be of doubtful value."

Morgenthau said the present method of advertising can not be continued "if we pay some of those cooperating, and leave the others in status quo. Either we must pay all or none."

fields and thick wire entanglements in its path. Seized in the advance was the town of Rocco San Giovanni, more than four miles beyond the Sangro. Farther inland, official dispatches said, Eighth Army units were "very near" the important town of Casoli, fourteen miles from the Adriatic on the main lateral road that supplied the enemy's Sangro river defenses.

Allied Strategy

Asiatic war. The mere threat of her strength holds huge Japanese forces immobilized in Manchuria.

Should she someday become actively involved, the strategy for beating Japan probably would change overnight to provide an immediate aerial offensive from Russian bases. Yet in her relations with Japan Russia has done everything possible to avoid trouble — usually the Japanese have, too, because a two-front war might have jeopardized victory on both fronts. Because of Russia's uncertain role, present plans for defeating Japan must be focused on China because of her manpower resources and strategic position.

Three Main Routes

As military men here explain the situation there are three main routes for approaching the enemy's main islands from the American side of the Pacific. One is the westward route upon which Admiral Chester W. Nimitz set his Pacific fleet last month in the invasion of the Gilbert islands. Another is the northward march of General Douglas MacArthur's forces, presently also including the forces of Admiral William F. Halsey, South Pacific commander. The third is the southwest route from the tip of the Aleutians into the Kuriles.

In relation to China, the chief point made about these routes is this: None of them leads to islands sufficiently large and close to Japan to serve as bases for a strategic bombing offensive. The bases already captured in the Gilberts and Solomons, therefore, and those to be captured from there to the Philippines are first, supporting points for each new advance and, second, links in a chain of supply pointed toward the Philippines.

On the British-India side of Asia there are two routes toward Japan, both under command of Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten. One is the Burma Road way through China; the other is the Singapore approach to the South China sea and — again — to the Philippines and the China coast.

There is little doubt in informed quarters that Cairo-approved strategy calls for operating on both routes. Undoubtedly Mountbatten's main effort will be an amphibious campaign against Malaya-Singapore-Sumatra, a long and arduous job.

That question of time keeps the Burma backdoor to China in the picture as an interim supply route. Mountbatten probably will not have to clean out all Burma but only the Rangoon area in order to facilitate his amphibious operations and the Northwestern corner in order to safeguard the Ledo road. This is a new "Burma Road" being built to link India with China without the necessity of having to kill every Japanese soldier in Burma.

Sec. Ickes Scores Southern Operators

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2 (P)—Interior Secretary Ickes blasted away today at Southern coal mine operators who have withdrawn from current contract negotiations with the United Mine Workers and a spokesman for the Southern group retorted promptly with a charge that Ickes was bringing pressure on the War Labor Board "to do what it knows it cannot do without violating the wage stabilization program."

At a press conference, Ickes referred to Edward R. Burke, president of the Southern Coal Producers Association, and said he was

"continuing his sit-down strike." He then described James D. Francis, president of the Island Creek Coal Company of West Virginia, as the "principal devil in the Southern operators' machinery" and said Burke "does what Francis tells him to do."

$21,000,000,000 Paid To American Veterans, Rep. Randolph Says

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Dec. 2 (P)—More than $21,000,000,000 in direct benefits to veterans and their families have been paid by the federal government since its founding, Rep. Randolph (D-W.Va.) said tonight.

At present, he said in a transcribed broadcast over station WJAR, the government is caring for approximately 1,000,000 veterans.

Reviewing veteran legislation recently passed or now pending before Congress, the West Virginian said "it is the intention of Congress that when the veterans of the present war return home after victory has been won a grateful citizenry will not forget their sacrifices."

Nazis Reconsidering Swede Deportations

STOCKHOLM, Dec. 2 (P)—Dispatches from Norway indicated tonight the Germans were reconsidering the fate of 1,200 students and teachers after Sweden's "urgent request" to cancel an order to deport them to Germany.

Other reports reflected still more trouble for the Nazi occupation forces in Norway and the Baltic states.

German-censored news stories from Oslo said the Germans had not made up their minds whether to deport the arrested university students. Meanwhile, the Oslo newspaper Aftenposten reported Norwegian schools would be checked for any "disloyal" students.

MARTIZES ASK $50,000 DAMAGES FROM CITY IN SEWER DISPUTE

Mr. and Mrs. George A. Martz, 626 North Mechanic street, have written the mayor and city council asking for damages of $50,000.

Following receipt of the letter Martz was contacted by telephone and said the reason for his action is the "loss of health, expenses and worry" caused him by the city in connection with a sewer.

Martz told the council recently that he is willing to connect to the sewer and pay the tapage fee but will not pay the frontal cost. All other persons on the street have paid the latter charges and the city contends the Martz home must be connected to the sewer.

land forces, other planes struck the Buin-Paisi region on the south coast with forty-four tons, destroying gun positions, ammunition and twenty-one buildings.

Pulling out the details of the Bougainville land raid, Admiral William F. Halsey's headquarters said between 600 and 700 marines moved against the Japanese supply area three and a half miles southeast of the Empress Augusta beach-head Nov. 28 and 29. The raid was termed "moderately successful."

The marines ran into heavier opposition than they had anticipated. In addition to the 200 counted enemy dead, gunfire probably accounted for many more. Fifteen marines were killed and seventy-one wounded.

The marines blew up an artillery ammunition dump, destroyed large quantities of rifles, food and medical supplies.

OPA Figures

"The result would be terrific pressures for price and wage increases all along the line, and they may grow beyond the capacity of administrative agencies to deal with them."

Bowles and Jean F. Carroll, chief of OPA's food price division, testified in opposition to the House-approved bill to ban food subsidy payments after Jan. 1.

Carroll said termination of subsidies at the end of this year would compel an "immediate" increase of seven per cent in retail food costs.

McClellan asserted that if OPA adjusted retail prices in an amount equal to present subsidy payments food prices would rise less than three per cent.

Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia of New York and a number of other city administrators are scheduled to testify tomorrow in support of subsidies.

A Frank Statement on the Whiskey Shortage

Is there really a shortage?

How much whiskey is available?

How long will the present supply last?

IT IS APPARENT that there is great confusion on the subject of the present whiskey supply. Surely the public is entitled to the facts no matter how discouraging they may be. Following are frank answers to some of the most pertinent questions:

1. Is there really a whiskey shortage in this country?

Yes...a serious shortage...because not a drop of whiskey has been distilled since October 8, 1942. The distilling facilities of the entire industry are engaged, day and night, in producing nothing but war-alcohol for the Government.

2. Why does the Government need so much war-alcohol?

Because modern wars cannot be waged successfully without it. War-alcohol is an essential ingredient in the manufacture of smokeless powder, chemical warfare materials, synthetic rubber and medical supplies which alleviate pain, combat infection, and save human lives.

3. How much whiskey is there actually in storage?

Approximately 303,000,000 gallons.

While the Alcohol Tax Unit of the Treasury Department, as of October 31, 1943, reported an inventory of 399,023,881 gallons, ORIGINALLY put in barrels, nearly 96,000,000 gallons have actually disappeared through leakage and evaporation which leaves a net of about 303,000,000 gallons. This evaporation is recognized by the Government approved table of allowances.

There is no mystery about the amount of whiskey withdrawn from or in storage in Government bonded warehouses. The Alcoholic Tax Unit publishes these figures monthly.

4. Is a comparison between whiskey stocks and whiskey withdrawals, a true indication of how long the available supply will last?

No. It is an accepted practice to blend grain neutral spirits with straight whiskey. Normally, as a result of this blending, the total amount of whiskeys available to the public is increased. Today, however, the supply of grain neutral spirits is only a small fraction of that of straight whiskeys and soon the supply will be exhausted, making it necessary to withdraw more straight whiskey to replace the grain neutral spirits formerly used.

5. Can all of this 303 million gallons of whiskey be sold now?

No. Prior to the war, the distilling industry carried a normal inventory in bonded warehouses of over 500 million gallons which was necessary to maintain reasonable standards of quality. To avoid a repetition of conditions which existed in 1934, following repeal of prohibition, when young and immature whiskey was offered to the public, it is essential to the public interest that some reserve be maintained for post-war requirements. Otherwise, there will be a bone-dry period following the war, or the public will be compelled to drink green, unpalatable whiskey. Since the entire whiskey stocks now available are already dangerously lower than normal inventory needs, the reserving of not less than 100 million gallons is imperative, even though entirely inadequate.

6. How much, therefore, is really available until production is resumed?

About 203,000,000 proof gallons.

And it must be made clear that the only reason there is any legal whiskey at all is because whiskey must be aged before it is suitable for consumption. It cannot be made today and sold tomorrow like most other products. If it could, the country would have been bone-dry months ago because there would have been no reason for a stock. Never was the old adage, more applicable—"you can't have your cake and eat it, too."

7. How long would this supply last at the present unprecedented rate of demand aggravated by public hoarding, speculation and black market operations?

Certainly less than a year.

All present statements to the effect that there is "plenty of whiskey for five years" are completely false. Here's what would happen if, tomorrow morning each individual distiller abandoned his self-imposed rationing plan and simply accepted all orders. Provided they could get enough bottles, corks, caskets and sufficient labor, the entire supply would move out about as fast as it could be packaged... certainly in LESS THAN A YEAR. And surely no one could possibly regard this as a service to the public, the Government or the industry.

8. What has been done to make the available supply last?

For almost a year each distiller has been following a self-imposed rationing program.

Even so, it is estimated that they are now bottling and releasing at the annual rate of from 90 and 100 million gallons of whiskeys, compared with an output of whiskey of 134,508,954 gallons in the Government fiscal year ending June 30, 1943, and 133,277,074 in the preceding fiscal year.

Though some localities felt the shortage before others, the shortage is now universal. The majority of distillers are distributing their products fairly and equitably to the various markets on the basis of previous purchase records, with due allowances for shifts in population.

9. Have distillers sought permission to resume the making of whiskey during the War?

The position of the industry has been that as long as the Government requires its entire distilling facilities for the production of war-alcohol, these facilities should be devoted 100% to that purpose. When the total facilities are no longer needed by the Government, the distillers felt that at least a partial resumption of the making of whiskey should be granted in order to alleviate the critical shortage and its resulting evils.

CONCLUSIONS

1. There is an acute shortage of whiskey. If the present abnormal rate of demand were fully satisfied, the supply would be exhausted in less than a year.

2. Even under the present rationing programs of the individual distillers, conditions will become progressively more acute and aggravated because not a single drop of whiskey sold since October 8, 1942 is being replaced. The public must realize that its consumption of whiskey must be curtailed, as has its consumption of all other scarce commodities.

3. There can be no solution of the present shortage until beverage production is resumed.

4. Black markets and other violations resulting from the shortage of liquor are condemned by the responsible members of this industry just as severely as they are by enforcement officials.

We know of no other industry in America which is devoting its production facilities 100% to war work... is accounting for over 1 billion dollars in Federal and State taxes annually... and, at the same time, is filling some portion of the current demands of its customers. When you consider all these facts, isn't it fair to ask your understanding and cooperation under the present difficult conditions?

Armour Ideas Make the Most of Meat

A Star Bacon Feast for Hearty Eaters

You know, not all the best wartime meals were discovered since Pearl Harbor! For instance, this big country supper of Star Bacon and eggs with fried potatoes has always been a favorite of hearty eaters.

After this kind of meal your friends will slowly push back their chairs and sigh with satisfaction. And satisfied they will be, too... for there's delicious and solid nourishment in every bite of this big meat meal.

First, put several strips of Armour's Star Bacon in a cold frying pan over low heat and fry slowly for 6 to 8 minutes. You'll notice a tantalizing fragrance right away... for Star Bacon is slow smoked over hickory and hardwood fires... has that smoky savor that all America loves.

Pour off fat as it accumulates, removing bacon to warm plate when it is crisp but not brittle. Fry Cloverbloom eggs in bacon fat (a great way to spread the bacon flavor) and arrange on toast as shown. Serve with a big side dish of fried potatoes.

There's a place for giving in wartime living

Fighting for the American Way of Living doesn't necessarily mean forgetting the American Way of Giving. We at home, gladly doing all we can to further the war effort, can still be animated by the generous, warm-hearted, traditional spirit of Christmas giving. We owe it to those away from home — and to each other — to keep that spirit alive. And in wartime as in peacetime, there are few better, more practical tokens of regard than fine quality Ormond stockings, gloves and handbags.

ORMOND Means Exceptional Values!

Though we have less to sell this year, due to wartime curtailments of production, we do have representative selections of Ormond stockings, anklets, gloves and handbags—all traditionally fine, all priced in keeping with traditional Ormond value-giving standards.

Harry Hopkins Airs His Views On Postwar Area

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2 (AP)—Harry Hopkins envisioned today a postwar America "realistic" about its own interests, maintaining its plant sea and air fleets and becoming a great merchant marine power.

President Roosevelt's close adviser gave this blueprint in a signed article written for American magazine, in which he asserted:

"We will emerge from this war the richest and most powerful people in the world. We must go to the peace table in the full dignity of our strength, fair-minded but not soft-minded, kind but firm, insistent upon the welfare of our people x x x."

Hopkins indicated a belief that the United States will demand and get a world-wide chain of air bases for mutual protection of Allies. He foresaw also these possible peace table proposals:

- 1—Destruction of Germany's capacity to make war.
- 2—Outlawing of Nazism and Fascism, with insistence upon self-determination for liberated peoples.
- 3—The United States in the role of a world banker, willing to lend money to war-torn countries for purchase of American goods. Debtor countries would have to guarantee that United States holdings would not be subject to expropriation and the loans with interest must be repaid in full.
- 4—Tariffs and international trade barriers to be lowered to encourage trade and make raw materials available to all.

Hopkins said U. S. help to the war-ravaged lands may mean that Americans will have to forego luxuries for some time after the war ends. In this connection, the War Production Board should be maintained to regulate the flow of raw materials and production for a temporary postwar period, he said.

The United States Marines have formed a bagpipe band in Londonderry, Ireland, composed of pipes, bugles and drums.

The guitar one of the oldest musical instruments, traces uninterrupted lineage to 550 B. C.

Tired Kidneys Often Bring Sleepless Nights

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. When they get tired and don't work right in the daytime, many people have to get up at night. Frequent or scanty passage with a burning and stinging sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't neglect this condition and lose valuable, restful sleep.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may also cause sagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Kaylor Asks Funds To Protect Forests

BALTIMORE, Dec. 2 (AP)—Maryland experienced more forest fires during the first eleven months of the current year than during all of 1942, but the acreage burned over represented a considerable decrease.

This was reported today by State Forester Joseph F. Kaylor, who declared that unless additional funds are forthcoming from the federal government, Maryland's fire protective service will suffer. He said that until yesterday, Maryland had 1,546 forest fires during 1943, as compared with only 1,527 during the whole of last year. The acreage burned over, however, amounted to only 23,824 acres during the first 11 months of the year, in contrast to 35,548 during all of 1942. He noted that the reduction had been effected in a year when fields and woodlands were extremely dry during much of the forest fire season. Lady Jane Grey was queen of England for nine days in 1553.

Spread of Illegal Nursery Boarding House Racket Feared by Child Care Authorities

MARVIN-ALFRED—Twenty-two-month-old Marvin Brown, above, was registered at a Detroit boarding house-nursery as "Alfred Lawson."

By AL KAUFMAN
Central Press Correspondent
DETROIT—Spawned in a period of feverish demands for war production, the ugly nursery and boarding house racket has been added to the list of war crimes on the home front.

Parents have literally abandoned children in unlicensed and shady homes to heed the cry of a labor shortage and grab one of the lucrative paying jobs in defense plants.

The tragedy of their patriotism was revealed here recently on Detroit's lower east side when police found five-year-old Richard Shoenmaker standing in front of an unlicensed home.

He was cold, crying and nursing an injured finger. Neighbors called police and when they forced their way into the home they found it dark and unheated.

During the police investigation one father came forward and said he was surprised to discover that his daughter was in Mrs. Lees' home and not in her daughter's home where he originally boarded her.

His Explanation
Like other parents, he explained: "I had to take the child somewhere. I had a war job and no one to take care of her. I didn't know the house was unlicensed."

During the Lees investigation, police uncovered two more unlicensed boarding homes here. In one, a 11-week-old child smothered to death in his crib. The operator expressed regret and said the death was accidental. Who is to blame? Child care authorities in Detroit pointed out that such illegal establishments flourish here—and no doubt in other industrial centers—because of a lack of proper registered homes.

Because of the draft of pre-Pearl Harbor fathers and the consequent necessity for these mothers' working, they predict that more illegal nurseries will mushroom.

Missing Army Nurses And Soldiers Safe

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2 (P)—The war department was advised today that thirteen army nurses, twelve soldiers and the crew of an army transport plane previously reported missing are safe.

The plane was taking the nurses and soldiers from North Africa to a point on the East coast of Italy, but overshot its destination and was lost in bad weather. That occurred November 8, and the fact that the plane and its occupants were missing was disclosed earlier this week. Department officials said they had no further information than the bare report that all aboard the plane have been found and are safe.

Fashioning Fiddles Is War Time Hobby

In his tiny garage attic, he has completed six violins and started three more. Neighbors sometimes hear him sawing out sweet test tunes. They haven't complained.

Once his hobby was photography, but the war made supplies scarce. Turning to fiddle fabrication, Williams read every available book on the art. The late George C. Lindsay, violin maker, showed him tricks of shaping and assembling the seventy-two parts and varnishing the instrument to produce a good tone.

New York city consumes more than 10,000,000 tons of bituminous coal a year.

Maybe His Mother Got Well

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (P)—The Salvation Army loaned an unidentified man $2.56 back in 1921 so that he could go to Huntington and visit his sick mother. The other night the recipient paid back with interest. An army worker was walking along a Charleston street when a man tapped him on the shoulder. The man told of the old debt, and handed over a check.

Voting Machines Have a Jackpot

LEXINGTON, Ky. (P)—Normally Democratic Fayette county, using newly-acquired voting machines, joined the rest of Kentucky in electing a Republican state ticket. Fayette Circuit Clerk George DeLong couldn't explain what happened in the other Kentucky counties, but he had Fayette all figured out.

"These new-fangled voting machines," he said, "have a jackpot, and the Republicans hit it."

CHAPTER THIRTY-ONE

BETH SIGHED and picked up her soup spoon. She didn't even look up when Andrea fled from the dining room with eyes and cheeks hot as flame after Beth made her sharp retort.

Dinner in the Ronald household, if ever there was one, would never have a dull moment. Not with Andrea making a habit of flouncing away from the table every time she got in a pique. Maybe an ever-loving

Jim would go after her and cajole her back into a happy frame of mind, but Beth was through with all that.

Stolidly she played through watery soup, breast of veal, carrots and peas, apple pie and coffee. Then quite calmly she got up and went up to the Merrill girl's room, as if Andrea were not in the house, and played gin rummy until midnight. Andrea could have been in Timbuctoo.

Sunday morning she came back from church and looked in the living room for her, now full of contrition, but Andrea, someone said, had gone out at 11 and said she wouldn't be back that day.

Beth went up to see what Andrea had borrowed. It was almost impossible to believe she hadn't borrowed anything, but she hadn't. Beth began to realize that Andrea was mad clear through.

Monday morning they met for the first time at the breakfast table. Andrea looked up and said nothing. "Have a good time at the party?" Beth asked.

"Very good. Of course I'm not a brilliant conversationalist."

"That won't bother me this morning," Beth informed her, looking at her watch. "I've six minutes to catch my breakfast."

It went on that way for a week. Politeness at breakfast and dinner. No evening dates together. Andrea had two dates that week with some girls. By Saturday she was tired of being aloof and greeted Beth at dinner time as if nothing had happened. Beth was glad to have the storm over.

"Let's take a long walk tomorrow," Beth said. Andrea proposed, "I'll go to church with you and after lunch we'll take a real hike."

They started out a little after two, feeling a cold wind cutting through the bare stark trees that had so lately been shading hot streets, snapping their footsteps to warm themselves. Everywhere they saw men in uniform, men whose faces had a new, purposeful look. They were aware of an odd undercurrent in the air.

Beth shivered once and said, "Doesn't Washington seem unusual to you today? Everybody seems to be hurrying to some special destination. And all the cars."

"There are always lots of cars in Washington," Andrea said, "but I do feel something in the air. Shall we walk out toward the White House?"

"No," Beth said, "let's go this way."

On Pennsylvania avenue, traffic was moving slowly. An endless stream of great black official cars moving the distance of a block between lights.

Pedestrians moved in a slow, steady flow past the iron picket fence around the White House grounds, casting somber faces toward the great white building. On their faces was a stunned, hushed look.

Inside the White House radio men and newspaper correspondents from all over the country, summoned by telephone from their peace-time Sabbath, were waiting, white-faced, tense, for the appearance of Steve Early. The president was in his study, close to a telephone.

On Massachusetts avenue, slant-eyed house-boys peered through the curtains of the Japanese embassy to watch the police keeping back the ominous crowds gathering there. In the rear of the building, a small fire was started and yellow smoke drifted up from burning papers.

In Pittsburgh, San Francisco, Omaha, Kansas City, London and Berlin, in every town and city, hamlets and whistle stop in the United States, men and women sat by their radios, stunned beyond speech.

At Pearl Harbor, the dead and dying lay, 6,600 miles away.

Andrea Barnes and Beth Kinnin warmed their hands around cups of steaming chocolate in a little store run by a Greek and decided that a two-hour walk was enough on a day which even the sun could not make less bleak.

"Let's go home and read until 'You've got me down, all this psychic stuff, feeling something in the air of yours gives me the creeps.'"

"It could have happened," Beth said to herself, "it could have."

It was just half past four when they went into the house. At first they thought there was no one there—they usually heard voices in the living room on Sunday afternoon—and then they saw that the living room was filled. Everyone in the house seemed to be there, all eyes turned to the radio, which was on. They heard the voice of a news commentator, and the click of knitting needles. That was all. Andrea was half way up the stairs, Beth at her heels, when she heard it.

Early's statement: "So far as is known now, the attacks on Wawai and Manila were made wholly without warning—when both nations were at peace—and were delivered within an hour or so of the time the Japanese ambassador and Special Envoy Kurosu had gone to the State Department and handed to the secretary of state the Japanese reply to the secretary's memorandum of Nov. 26."

"As soon as information of the attack on Manila and Hawaii was received the War and Navy departments, flashed it immediately to the president at the White House, thereupon the president directed the Army and Navy to execute all previously prepared orders looking to the defense of the United States."

"The president now is with the secretary of war and the secretary of the navy, and steps are being taken to advise congressional leaders."

Andrea came back down the stairs and for a long moment the two white-faced girls looked at each other. Then their hands met and held, and slowly they went into the living room.

"It happened at half-past two. Just after you went out they made the first announcement," they were told. "The Japs bombed Pearl Harbor just before eight this morning."

Jim! His name was a prayer in the hearts of the two girls who sat huddled together on the sofa in a Washington living room listening for the news flashes that came over the radio, waiting, waiting, as thousands of others were for the most important news of all—what were the casualties?

At a quarter of eight a newscaster broke in to say, "Bill Hassett, Steve Early's assistant, has just come out of the lobby of the executive offices to make the following announcement. "The War Department has supplied the White House with a preliminary—it is only a preliminary—report on casualties. This report places the military dead at 194, and the military wounded at more than 300."

Andrea rose and walked from the room, the color back to her face once more, her step light. When Beth caught up with her, she turned and smiled. "There's nothing to worry about, Beth. Only 104 dead out of all those men. I know Jim is safe. This is just a flurry."

On the waterfront of San Diego a silent throng stood, watching the loading of a giant transport and as one man, they looked with cold, determined eyes, west across the harbor, beyond Point Loma over the Pacific where men were dead and dying and Andrea Barnes

"flurry" had become a storm from hell.

Retired Cedar Grove Man Tells World's Tonic Relief Story

Man Praises Laxative Aid of Famous Herb Medicine As Stomach Distress, Nervous Headaches And Dizzy Spells Get Long Sought Relief

Mr. H. S. Fridley, living at Williams and George Sts., Cedar Grove, near Charleston, W. Va., says: "Since I retired from active work it seems that occasional constipation has been getting pretty bad. A number of ailments came on because of this condition and I was feeling tired and nervous. Dizzy bilious spells would bring spots passing in front of my eyes and often I felt light headed and giddy for some time afterwards. I'd have sick headaches and misery would come in my back, joints and muscles. Gas often brought stomach cramps after meals and many times I'd suffer from heart-burn, acid-belching and indigestion."

"It seems I feel better all around since World's Tonic brought such relief from constipation and the ailments which followed this condition. The dizzy bilious spells are not coming on so, and the sick headaches have been relieved. The misery don't come in my back and I don't suffer, so, after meals from heart-burn, acid-belching, shortness of breath and stomach cramps from gas."

Bottle Message Dunkerque Echo

BRIGHTON, England (AP)—An echo of Dunkerque, in the form of a message placed in a bottle and consigned to the sea by a soldier, was washed ashore by the tide here.

The message read: "1940 Dunkerque. Wishing England all the best."

However, Bigos can't read Antosiewicz's handwriting, so Chester has to read back for corrections. Between the two and a Polish-English dictionary, Papa Antosiewicz gets a letter about every two weeks.

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—It looks as if a thief with a Jekyll and Hyde personality has been visiting the Valentine Museum.

The first case of pilfering reported to police showed the loss of several dolls, a string of glass beads and a rosary. The next time the thief made off with a four-barreled pistol, a .32-calibre pistol and a fire chief's badge.

SPAR Head Fights for Freedom— And She Wants It after the War

By MARGARET KERNODLE
AP Features Writer

WASHINGTON—“I think there are going to be a good many women who would like to stay in uniform after the war is over, but I won't be one of them.”

That's how Lt. Comdr. Dorothy C. Stratton feels about it after a year as director of the SPARs.

“I want to get back to civilian life after the war; my experience in uniform makes me appreciate the kind of freedom one has as a civilian,” the Coast Guard Women's Reserve director told me as the organization passed its first anniversary.

“The thing that gives me the most urge to get back to the campus (she was dean of women at Purdue university) is postwar education planning, which promises to be first rate guidance,” she said.

“I don't want to see the regimentation we've had as a wartime expedient extended when the war is over,” she said, “but I've learned that we've probably over-emphasized the individual and have not been taught responsibility to government.”

She says the feeling has developed among service people and government employees that “the government owes me a living.”

Commander Stratton expects that

Lt. Comdr. Stratton

men and women returning from war to the campus will want to proceed more rapidly than the normal program provides.

“They're going to be restless,” she said, “and want to learn something to put them on a job quickly. The men will be trying to forget what they've been through. The girls will be used to travel (as a result of training and transfers)."

"It's going to be hard to settle down, but one of the hopes of education will be the educators active in military life who will understand the problems."

Commander Stratton sees both advantages and disadvantages to being in service.

"Things that make her life less comfortable include being on the road half the time, living out of a suitcase, the routine of reporting at regular hours, and having to report to a superior officer when she leaves a station."

"If I want to go across the street for a cup of coffee while we talk," she said, "I must tell the admiral I will not be 'aboard' the next forty minutes."

Another bugaboo is being unable to come and go weekends.

Sacrifices? Yes, she admits that when she became a SPAR she passed up "the chance of a lifetime, the biggest inner satisfaction is doing a job that seems to further the war effort."

Security in Uniform

Here is why she believes many women in uniform may prefer to remain in uniform in peacetime, although she says "of course they can't."

When she came into uniform she was amazed at the feeling of national security you get when affiliated with a military organization which has a station everywhere you go to help you.

"In a certain sense," she says, "you're relieved of certain other responsibilities—medical care, dental care, clothing, housing, food—things you struggle for as a civilian."

"As a civilian you decide the job to take, where to work. In uniform the decisions are made for you by the service to which you belong."

"It's not so much regimentation as it is paternalism. It's an idea you're looked after, and that is a comforting thought."

Manpower Shortage Creates Shoplifters

BALTIMORE, Dec. 2 (AP)—The manpower shortage and a tendency towards the "help yourself system" in Baltimore stores were reported today as the two principal causes of the increased number of shoplifters.

The approaching Christmas holiday seems not only to be swelling the number of shoppers but also the number of thieves, Baltimore police said, adding that this is caused by the acute shortage of help in the department stores. They gave another reason as the fact that store managers have been compelled to expose more merchandise to customer handling in an effort to facilitate waiting on the trade.

Officers stated that the favorite form of shoplifting here now consists of using a large shopping bag or slipping stolen articles inside an overcoat.

Glycerine is used as a base for the ointments and emulsions which carry the sulfa drugs to fighting fronts.

Bounties of land, money and clothing were offered to attract volunteers in the Revolutionary war.

Garrett County Reaches War Fund Quota

Is First County in State To Go over the Top, Chair- man Learns

OAKLAND, Dec. 2.—That Garrett county would surpass its national war fund campaign quota by more than twelve hundred dollars was announced this morning by Bernard I. Gonder, county chairman, with actual cash in the hands of the treasurer, Cecil Smith, now totaling $6,143.02. It was confidently felt that at least $250 was yet to be received.

V. A. Rule, state representative, notified Gonder that Garrett county was the first in the state to raise its quota and sent his congratulations and those of other state officers to the entire county committee and to all who contributed so generously and promptly.

The county quota was $5,100. Oakland's contribution was increased to $2,839.51 this week with reports of other committees. Oakland High school students and teachers contributed $215.00 which brought the committee of schools and churches in Oakland to $553.07. The Methodist church contributed $110.00 this week. The Union Thanksgiving offering of $30.00 was also turned over to the war fund, designated specifically to the United China Relief. Kitzmiller's report of $242.35 is not complete and Vindex has yet to report, but Mr. Gonder said they had indicated the amount there would be $100 additional from Kitzmiller and $150 from Vindex.

Actual cash in hands of the treasurer was listed as follows: Accident, $219.21; Avilon-New Germany, $78.50; Bittinger, $81.34; Bloomington, $80.25; Crellin, $250; Deer Park, $178.26; Finzel, $5; Friendsville, $408.27; Grantsville, $458.41; Hutton, $10.50; Jennings, $215; Kempston, $208.62; Loch Lynn Heights, $175; McHenry, $31; Mt. Lake Park, $215.70; Oakland, $2,839.51; Reg House-Gortner, $78.75; Shallmar, $100; Sang Run, $32.50; Steyer-Gorman, $157.95; Swanton, $76.50; Kitzmiller, $242.34; total, $6,143.02.

The county campaign committee expressed itself as grateful to the community chairmen and workers who in a number of rural areas from farm home to farm home in their determination to put Garrett county at the head of the list. Mr. Gonder said it was particularly gratifying because it proved to the rest of the state that the people here were vitally interested in the welfare of those in the armed forces and were more generous in proportion to their incomes, than other sections of Maryland.

Officers Re-elected

Officers of the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department were re-elected at a meeting of that organization last night as follows: E. A. Shaffer, president; A. G. Gortner, vice-president; Joseph Stanton, secretary; Walter W. Dawson, treasurer; Emory Bolden, chief; Grover C. Stemple, assistant chief; James Lewis, second assistant chief; A. G. Hesen, captain.

The standing committee includes the president, vice-president, chief and assistant chief; also W. W. Dawson, Lawrence M. Praley and Howard P. Stuck.

A report was made of the number of fires during the past year, showing the department answered calls to thirty-six fires, with an average attendance of 18. None of the fires around Oakland was serious. The department was called a number of times for out-of-town fires. During the year the department took part in five air-raid alerts or blackouts and during the year also there were three calls for the oxygen inhalator, in each case contributing to the saving of life, according to Shaffer.

Farmers Will Vote

The time and place of community elections for farmers participating in the Agricultural Conservation Association program were announced by John H. Carter, county agent, and secretary, as follows, all to be held on Friday evening, December 3, at 8 o'clock.

Community A, election district 1, at North Glade School; B and C, district 2, Friendsville High school; D and E, district 3, Grantsville High school; F, districts 4 and 11, Bloomington school; G, district 5, Accident agriculture building; H, district 6, Sang Run School; I, districts 7 and 16, Pleasant Valley Grange Hall; J and K, district 8, Sunnyside Grange Hall; L, districts 9 and 15, Avilon School; M, districts 10 and 13, Kitzmiller High school; N, district 12, Bittinger school; O and P, district 14, at the county agent's office, Oakland.

The county has been divided into communities, each community electing its own committeemen. Carter declared it was important that those participating elect farmers who are willing to serve and assume the responsibility required as committeemen.

Community delegates who are elected are scheduled to meet on December 4 in the county agent's office to elect the 1944 agricultural conservation committee for the county.

Textile Workers Seek 10 Cents An Hour Raise

Local 1874 Opens Negotiations with Celanese Corporation

Local 1874, Textile Workers of America, is asking a flat wage increase of ten cents an hour for members of the union employed in the Anacostia plant of the Celanese Corporation of America, according to a joint statement by Walter R. Walters, president, and John G. Thomas, business manager of Local 1874.

Union officials asserted the company was notified of the request on November 27 and that the company acknowledged the communication Tuesday. The request for the opening of wage negotiations is in accordance with the terms of the contract, effective until September 30, 1944, providing that negotiations may be opened once during the life of the contract upon thirty days notice.

In addition to the flat ten cent increase the union will ask for a minimum wage scale of sixty-five cents an hour after thirty days of employment. The present minimum starting rate is fifty-five cents an hour. Starting rates, however, run as high as ninety-two cents an hour in some departments, Walters added. The present contract does not cover workers until they have worked for thirty days.

The demands being made here are uniform for the whole rayon industry, Walters said. He and Thomas returned yesterday from New York where they attended a two-day conference of rayon industry labor leaders.

Local 1874 will do all possible to show public the justice of the request for increased wages. Walters asserted, saying the union feels that the increase is needed due to the policies that have been put into practice by some agencies of the government, making it impossible to keep prices down.

Child Pianist Will Play Here Tuesday

Richard Korbel, 9, Is Hailed as "Boy Wonder" of Music World

Cumberland is one of a limited number of cities that will be privileged to hear the "boy wonder" of the music world, nine-year-old Richard Korbel, who gives a piano recital next Tuesday at 8:30 p. m. in Fort Hill auditorium as the second of the current series of programs being presented by the Cumberland Concert Association.

The child prodigy made his debut a year ago in New York, playing works by Bach, Scarlatti, Schumann and Debussy.

Critics at the time wrote that the child's playing was remarkable in its control of tone, command of a wide range of dynamics and technical skill.

In the Bach-Spielberg organ prelude and fugue in C minor, the critics wrote, the boy at once displayed ability to bring surprising power as well as the utmost delicacy to his pianism.

A critic in the New York Times said the "sounds he summoned from the keys were always velvety and singing, deftly colored and capable of the finest nuances . . . with apparent effortlessness he made light of the speediest passages in four Scarlatti sonatas and the Schumann 'Kinderszenen' and Sonata in G minor."

Trick of Fate Makes Story for Fortress Seat Which Is Here

Lieut. Richard L. Lathrop Tells about Seat's Share in Battle with Japs

"C'est la guerre" is the explanatory comment given by servicemen to the trick of fate which built a story for the co-pilot's seat from a flying fortress which will be among the military exhibits brought here by Lieut. Richard L. Lathrop, of the Aviation Cadet Examining Board in Baltimore, for display in the lobby of the Maryland theater in conjunction with the local "Avenge Pearl Harbor day" observance.

The story that fate designed originates in the Southwest Pacific where the Flying Fortress and the seat were seeing active duty in battle with a squadron of Jap Zeros. During the battle, Lieut. Lathrop relates, one of the rear gunners was injured and the pilot ordered the co-pilot to man the gun at the rear position. Shortly after he took his new position, a Jap Zero bullet pierced the seat he had occupied.

Jeep Arrives

"Fate, luck, or whatever you may call it," the lieutenant commented, "that empty seat gave that co-pilot a new hold on life."

With one jeep making the rounds in Cumberland already and another scheduled to arrive today, Lieut. Lathrop and Tech. Sgt. Clarence L. Blehn, local recruiter, expect to complete the army's exhibits today when they will bring a thirty calibre machine gun and other pieces of equipment from Camp Ritchie. These will also be on display in the local theater.

Lieut. Lathrop has made arrangements with the war department in Washington, D. C., to have a squadron of bombers from Bolling Field participate in maneuvers over Cumberland during the bond rally Tuesday afternoon.

A native of Wisconsin where he lived most of his life until his entrance into the service, Lieut. Lathrop has the distinction of being an "up-from-the-ranks" man. He entered the service in 1938 as a buck private, received his commission at Fargo, N. D., in 1942, and has now reached the position where he may pin silver wings on youths who seek to equal his rank.

To Administer Oath

He recently received a commendation from Lt. Col. A. C. Curran, district recruiting officer, for his achievements in recruiting aviation cadets in the Baltimore area since he came here in February.

Lieut. Lathrop will administer the oath of enlistment to air corps enlistees in the ceremonies Tuesday night and will present to each enlistee the silver wings indicative of his membership in the armed forces of the United States.

RIGHT TO CHALLENGE OPA REGULATIONS PROPOSED BY BEALL

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2 (AP)—A bill which would permit persons accused of violating Office of Price Administration (OPA) regulations to challenge the validity of the regulation after prosecution had been brought was introduced today by Rep. Beall (R-Md.).

Beall, who described his bill (HR 3769) as a measure "intended to give American citizens their day in court," said that under the emergency price control act a citizen cannot challenge whether a regulation is constitutional or exceeds the authority of the act after prosecution has been brought.

Under his measure such challenge could be brought in the court in which the individual is being prosecuted.

Beall said present procedure is that a person accused of an Emergency Price Control act violation can appeal to the OPA or to an especially set-up emergency court of appeals, but that if the person neglects to do so and prosecution subsequently is brought by the government, the individual is prohibited from challenging the validity of the regulation.

Campaign for the way with an average of over $10 each.

Effects of soliciting letters sent to employees of the Celanese union are beginning to be felt and campaign leaders said Celanese local employees have contributed $70 to date.

One of the Celanese contributions came from a 17-year-old girl who contributed $15 to help her brother overseas.

The County section reported a total solicitation yesterday of $11,225.37, thus having raised forty-five per cent of its goal.

National Firms section came through with a total report of $2,325 for seventy-two per cent of its total goal, and the Advanced Big Gifts committee turned in an additional $10,000 to raise its total to $34,981.50 and some within seven per cent of its quota.

Teachers Contribute

Because sixty-two of the 302 school teachers preferred to contribute in their home communities in the county, goal for the teachers was reduced from $1,250 to $1,000.

Yesterday, Claude Wickard, regiment leader, announced that subscriptions from the teachers totaled $1,230, which is $230 over their goal. He pointed out that three schools are yet to be heard from and mentioned that every school reported to date has exceeded its goal.

E. S. Burke, chairman of the general committee in charge of the campaign presided at yesterday's meeting.

Contributions from the county communities follow:

Barrelville, $32.25; Barton, $96.75; Borden Shaft, $12.90; Carlos, $50.90; Corriganville, $45.15; Cresaptown, $72.72; Eckhart, $70.95; Ellerslie, $356.73; Flintstone, $64.50; Frostburg, $4,620.70; Lonaconing and Pekin, $1,140.55; Luke, $1,472.75; McCoolle, $32.25; Mt. Savage, $1,524.85; Midland and Gilmore, $109.65; Midlothian, $39.60; Oldtown, $122.50; Shaft, $69.90; Vale Summit, $81.40; Westernport, $1,208.37.

An additional fifty-four firms yesterday were presented Gold Star awards for reaching or exceeding their goals set for employee giving. Total firms to date that have won Gold Star awards number 249 and have subscribed a total of $15,351.51, or a net gain over last year of $10,101.06. Goal for the same firms this year was $13,361.58.

section it was necessary to organize a large number of separate groups of employees, and because of the time this required, solicitation in some groups did not get started until this week, "but the Union Industrial section is making a splendid showing . . . and there is every reason to believe that it will go over the top by Monday night."

Many Persons Not Seen

McMullen stated also that the extension of the campaign closing date will enable the various Cumberland sections to cover all their remaining prospects.

At the close of his address, McMullen called attention to the fact that the date for the final report meeting also is the second anniversary of the Jap attack on Pearl Harbor and urged that between now and Monday Allegheny countians should contribute to the support of the armed forces and "to thus lighten to some extent the sacrifices of those who are avenging Pearl Harbor for us."

William A. Gunter will make a radio address in behalf of the campaign at 6:15 p. m. today over station WTBO. Tomorrow at the same time Rep. J. Glenn Beall will speak.

CAP Men, Cadets, Air Corps Reservists Urged To Be at Armory Tonight

As the Civil Air Patrol begins its third year of service, Capt. Arthur Lyem, commander of Western Maryland Squadron 331, urges all Civil Air Patrolmen, CAP cadets and air corps enlisted reservists to report to the armory tonight at 7:30 p. m. for a special showing of sound films in connection with the patrol's pre-flight training.

With the CAP being accepted more favorably than when the organization began, Capt. Lyem stated, its efforts are now concentrated on rendering the most practical assistance to air forces around the world.

According to word he has received from headquarters, Capt. Lyem revealed that several hundred army aircraft of liaison type are being turned over to the CAP for distribution to the forty-eight state wings.

The local commander said he hoped to see at least one or two of these planes assigned to the Cumberland squadron. They are to be used for furtherance of CAP aviation cadet recruiting activities.

The CAP flying activities are also undergoing expansion, Capt. Lyem pointed out, in order that planes and pilots may be of maximum service in relieving military equipment and air crews for combat duty.

since 1939 and are part of the FBI Law Enforcement Officers' Mobilization Plan for National Defense.

Law enforcement officials from Garrett and Allegany counties are expected to be in attendance.

Hurson, of Silver Spring, Md., attended Gonzaga high school, Washington, D. C., and tried for end at Maryland, but his defensive power and weight induced Dr. Clarence W. Peers to shift him to the pivot job.

He was a sixty-minute man all season excepting for the Bainbridge game which he missed because of injuries received in the Virginia clash.

National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues was defeated.

The Minors wound up their explosive convention by acting on the sixteen amendments to their National Association agreement, voting increases in player limits and tossing out the attempt of the Double-A clubs to increase the value of their own votes over those for leagues of lower classification. This latter action was followed by a report that there was sentiment in some quarters of the three Double-A loops—International and Pacific Coast League and American Association—to "secede" from the National Association, form a new group and ask Commissioner Landis to take direct jurisdiction over them.

The work an unknown good man has done is like a vein of water flowing hidden underground, secretly making the ground green.

Landis Puts Final Crusher on Minor League Rebellion

Winter Meetings Go Into Stretch with Talk of Possible Deals

By SID FEDER

NEW YORK, Dec. 2 (AP)—High Commissioner Keresaw M. Landis, who has never lost a decision yet, put the final crusher on the late lamented rebellion against his reign over the national pastime today, as the winter meetings went into the stretch with a lot of talk—and little else—about possible player deals.

Except for a few scattered instances, all the trade winds were blowing around the Cleveland Indians and their desperate need for a centerfielder who could center field. Manager Lou Boudreau was in a huddle with practically everyone but the cigar-stand attendant in the lobby, dangling Jim Bagby, his supposedly-dissatisfied right-hand elbow, as trading bait.

But even the Indians just about had their best trading tomahawk taken away today when they were informed their top southpaw twirler of last season, Lefty Al Smith, had just been placed in 1-A by his local draft board. Smith, at his home in Wester Grove, Mo., said he hadn't heard anything from his board as yet.

Many Trades Mentioned

If Uncle Sam puts the finger on Lefty Al, the Tribe is going to think twice or five times before giving up Bagby, although for four days they've been trying to peddle him off for a center-fielder to a collection of clubs that includes (reading from left to right) the Washington Senators, Chicago White Sox, Detroit Tigers, St. Louis Browns and even the Philadelphia Athletics.

In addition to the Bagby-for-a-fly-chaser talk, in which the names of such performers as Chicago's Thurman Tucker, Detroit's Doc Cramer and Dizzy Trout, the Browns' Mike Charlak, and the Senators' Stan Spence were mentioned, the ivory market place also heard talk of a couple of other attempted transactions. One of these was a proposal for a straight first-baseman swap of Dick Siebert for Mickey Rocco, which Boudreau and Connie Mack of the Athletics talked about. Another was the Philadelphia Phillies suggestion that they take "Homesick Huck" Geary off the hands of the Pittsburgh Pirates, provided the Bucs can guarantee them the disappearing shortstop will show up next spring.

This was one plan the Phils had of settling their shortfield headaches. They also needed aspirin for their catching and one outfield slot. So they talked, too, about attempting a deal with the Chicago Cubs, who have three shortstops, five catchers, a brigade of outfielders and are generally better situated with raw material than any other club.

Landis Throws Out Protests

But all of this was still just hot air for the balloon, and the only real switch of the day found George (Specs) Toporcer, the old Cardinal second-sacker and veteran manager of Minor League clubs, named for one year to succeed Herb Pennock as head of the Boston Red Sox farm system, for whom he has been a scout recently.

Landis put out the final bit of life in the Minor League rebellion simply by throwing out the protest the six "rebel" Minor Leagues made to him about what happened to them in the Minor League convention yesterday when their insurrection against the commissioner's control and the reelection of William G. Bramham as president of the

The Man Behind the Ships Gets Them into the Water

FIRE THROUGH METAL is what sends the ship down the ways. It all depends on the man who burns through the plates attached to the ship up forward.

AP Features
CHARLESTON, S. C. — It takes more than champagne to launch a ship. It takes grime and grease, and the skill and sweat of a guy named Joe.

Joe never sees the pomp of a launching, never gets a peek at the sponsor or speakers. He's the guy who has to stay away down under back off of the ship to snatch out the chocks, kick out the blocks and send her down to the water. The ceremony starts exactly so many minutes and so many seconds after the hour Saturday afternoon. But Joe, or one of the 200 other guys like him, has been down there all day to get the stage set for the show.

Ship Lifted
He has "rammed her up" with wedges, lifting the ship off the keel blocks so they could be moved out from under. Then he took out the keel blocks and shores, moving out all those side-support timbers that had held the ship in place while building, and cleaned up the joint all around. Next Joe tackled the "thumb toggles," took them out and hung them on the board where they always go.

And the boss checked the toggles on the board, to see that they were all present and accounted for. Meanwhile, Joe had greased the rails under the cradle sides, smearing it on thickly so the ship would skid easily when they cut her loose. About 100 other Joes were at their places all through the ship, to check her when she hit the water and see that everything was okay from the inside.

By this time, Joe is all set for the fireworks topside, leans back against a stack of timbers and lights himself a smoke. A voice, deep and full of command, comes over the P. A. system.

"Today we have another twin launching, with the splendid workmen of this yard standing by eager and anxious to start the building of two more vessels as soon as these are launched."

Joe grins and rubs his hands together. The boss of the ways waves his arms and Joe jumps to the job. "Knock 'em out!" snaps the lieutenant commander.

Joe picks up a sledge hammer and dives for the "shoredog"—a big hunk of timber that holds back the cradle of the ship like the safety on a shot gun. He lets go with his hammer, and another guy snatches out the fall, and she drops.

Off Safety
The ship is "off safety" now, in shotgun language. All that's left now is for another guy named Joe.

up forward, to burn through the pieces of steel she's tied up to.

Up there on the platform, the mother of the hero for whom the ship is named is holding the silver champagne bottle. Down below her—out of sight of the dignitaries out front in the seats—Joe is waiting with his burner.

The commander, eyes on his watch, holds up his hand to Joe. "Light your torch," he says, and Joe does it. Two Joes, in fact, for there's another burner on the opposite side.

"Burn One," says the commander.

Joe pulls down his goggles and bends over the plate.

"Burn Two..." Joe takes out another piece.

"Burn Three... Burn Four..." SNAP!

SWOOSH!

The sponsor cracks down with the bottle, the champagne squirts, and the ship is on her way. God bless her, with the band playing "Anchors Aweigh."

A recent Pennsylvania state police survey indicates that two-thirds of the drivers involved in night highway accidents were affected with "night blindness."

Delightful Animals Seen
In "Snow White"

Of the millions of persons throughout the world who see Walt Disney pictures each day, not all realize that principal reason for their universal appeal is the manner in which Disney endows animals with human foibles.

This will be found particularly true in "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs." Disney's first full-length feature now showing at the Liberty.

The Grimm's folk tale was chosen for production because of the opportunity to present in it many small animals, adapted to appealing treatment.

There are rabbits, squirrels, chipmunks, several kinds of birds, tortoises and deer — and not a villain

among them. When Snow White becomes lost in the woods and breaks down through fright, the little animals approach her timidly and befriend her, leading her to a safe haven. This happens to be the home of the seven dwarfs, where she lives until the Prince Charming finds her weeks later.

Later these same animals contribute to one of the most enchanting scenes ever pictured. This comes when Snow White finds the dwarfs' cottage very dirty and enlists the aid of the animals in cleaning it up. Squirrels use their tails as brooms, others stack dirty dishes and some hop up and down on the pump handle to draw water. Bright-colored birds hang clothes on the line after other animals have washed them, using the under side of the tortoise as a wash-board.

Bumsteads Riot
In Uproarious Film

America's dizziest family, the Bumsteads, come to town in the latest "Blondie" bombshell, Columbia's "Footlight Glamour," which opens at the Maryland theater today for a run of five days. Of all the goofy goings-on indulged in by the effervescent Blondie and her loving but loony spouse, this latest episode is quite the goofiest. You'll laugh long and loud, and you'll also get that nice, warm feeling of being among very amusing friends. Silly as they seem, most of the time the Bumsteads are typical of all the healthy, wholesome young American couples who are striving to keep the home fires burning brightly and have fun doing it. In this new one the Bumsteads run into one of those periods that hit every household at one time or another, when life seems unglamorous. They both come stage-struck and watching them adopt and cultivate histrionic temperaments is about as amusing as a bit of screen nonsense as we have seen in many moons.

TO SUBSCRIBERS WHO GET THEIR PAPER
BY CARRIER

Some of our newspaper carrier boys have reported that they are having difficulty in making collections, sometimes, having to make several calls before receiving their money. This is specially true of homes where both husband and wife are employed and neither is at home when the carrier boy calls, although many other subscribers sometimes fail to make their payments promptly.

In order to understand why failure to pay promptly every week works an injustice on your carrier boy, it is necessary to know how he operates. He is a merchant in his own right, and our papers are the merchandise he sells. He buys his papers from us and sells them to you at a profit. This profit is his only payment for his services in delivering the paper to your home each day. He pays for his papers each week, after making his collections.

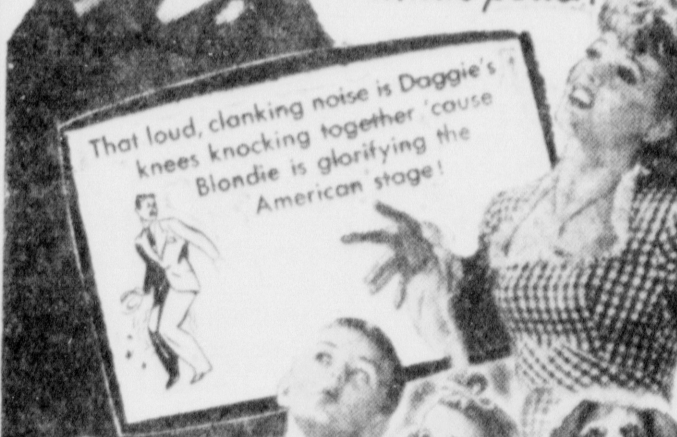

When he is unable to collect from his subscribers, he pays for his papers out of his own capital. Thus when you fail to pay him promptly, he has to become your "banker" and furnish the money to pay for the papers you have received. This is often a hardship, for although your individual bill may be trifling, if it is multiplied many times through failure to collect from other subscribers as well, it may be difficult, if not impossible, for the young merchant to finance his newspaper route.

Your kindness in having the money ready for the newspaper boy on his collection day will save him many steps by making call-backs unnecessary, and it will enable him to meet the expenses of his business. If you are unable to be home on collection days, it may be possible for you to make some arrangement whereby your carrier boy can be paid. Your consideration will be much appreciated, and your carrier boy will be able to serve you better.

World Awaiting Conference Plans, Simpson Asserts

By KIRK L. SIMPSON
Associated Press War Analyst

Alerted by the Cairo conference which passed grim death sentence upon Imperial Japan, world attention is focused now upon the more immediate results expected to flow from the long awaited personal meeting of Prime Minister Churchill, President Roosevelt and Premier Stalin.

Military decisions of the trio, already made or being shaped, mean intensified war upon Germany now, not at some remote future time. Twin crises are developing now for battered Nazi armies in Russia and in Italy to match that on the roofless and bomb-blasted Nazi home front.

Hope To Shorten War

The opportunity for concerted action to turn Nazi two-front retreats into disastrous routs and lop months off the duration of the war in Europe is clearly depicted in current bulletins from the fighting fronts. It cannot be ignored by the super war council. This is of the essence in the problem confronting the triumvirate of Allied war captains, and it waits on no man.

Here is the situation on the Southern and Eastern flanks of Nazidom:

In Italy British Eighth Army

veterans have crashed through to seize the heights of the Sangro. The Nazi left wing is officially reported in precipitate retreat after bloody losses, unhinging the desperately defended German winter front below Rome.

There is evidence that their Fifth Army and Allied comrades are now striking at the Cassino portals of a valley route to Rome.

In Russia the Red army drive that started a year ago on the Volga was being slowed west of the Dnieper but not halted.

And unless the Germans can stop the Russian advance, a new continuous retreat from Russia must ensue. That, too, as another Rus-lan winter moves into action across the whole battle line.

Reds To Resume Drive

The Russian offensive in the Kiev sector thus will be resumed under conditions of winter maneuver in which the Red army has always outmatched its foes. That it will come against Nazi troops exhausted after two weeks and more of costly counter attack which has regained Zhitomir and Korosten, but nowhere broken through in the Russian defense front in the rough country east of those points, seems certain.

This exhaustion is an element in the situation which military experience rates of first importance.

"Ten days is the estimated maximum length of time during which the Germans can now maintain a full scale attack, and that period has now elapsed," says General Horace S. Sewell, official British military commentator in Washington. He believes events will prove the Nazi drive has spent itself without cracking the Russian defense line or forestalling Russian return to the offensive.

That must mean cumulative exhaustion and disorganization in Nazi ranks in a critical sector. It must force upon the Nazi high command a prompt decision to retreat from all southwestern Russia before it is too late, or risk a Russian break-through to slice off the whole south flank of the line.

There will be no announcement of (Anglo-American-Russian) military decisions to capitalize on the Nazi plight in Italy and Russia until events at the front disclose them. It is inconceivable, however, that the Roosevelt-Churchill-Stalin meetings, coming at so critical a moment for the common enemy will not turn up ways and means of intensifying the attack everywhere, regardless of weather or other risks to be taken.

Olympic oysters are so tiny it takes 1,800 of them to make a gallon.

The highest salaried governor is New York's, who gets $25,000; South Dakota's get the least, $3,000.

And Staff Sergeant Is Not Superstitious

KEESLER FIELD, Miss. (AP)—Staff Sgt. Paul J. Spina of Frankfort, N. Y., was inducted into the army March 13.

He was the thirteenth man to be sent to this field from his induction center.

Placed in barracks 13, he had book No. 13 assigned to him in an engineers school.

Spina was sent to Greenland and wrote back that they must have known he was coming, because there was a spot ready for him in barracks 13.

Carpenter Does Not Know All About Baseball

Young President of Phillies Will Let Pennock Run the Business

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK, Dec. 2 (AP)—Bob Carpenter, Jr., is just 28 years old and never has been connected with Major League baseball before in his life, but oddly enough he doesn't claim to know all about it.

This is quite a refreshing attitude for a young sprout, as too many gents under similar circumstances—that is, abruptly made owner-president of the Phils—immediately would wave aside friendly advice and proceed to show the old fogies how a baseball club should be run.

He's tall, husky and might be an end on the Duke university football team, which he was. A sports nut, he dates every important event in his life by some athletic happening of the time. If you ask him what was his last year at Duke, he'll say:

"Let's see, it was the year before Duke went to the Rose Bowl, 1937 or 1938, wasn't it?"

He's Unusually Frank

He had an important announcement to make a couple of days ago, so the baseball writers trailed him to his room. He stuck his hands in his pockets, swung around on one heel like a bashful kid around his best girl, creased his face in a self-conscious grin, and blurted:

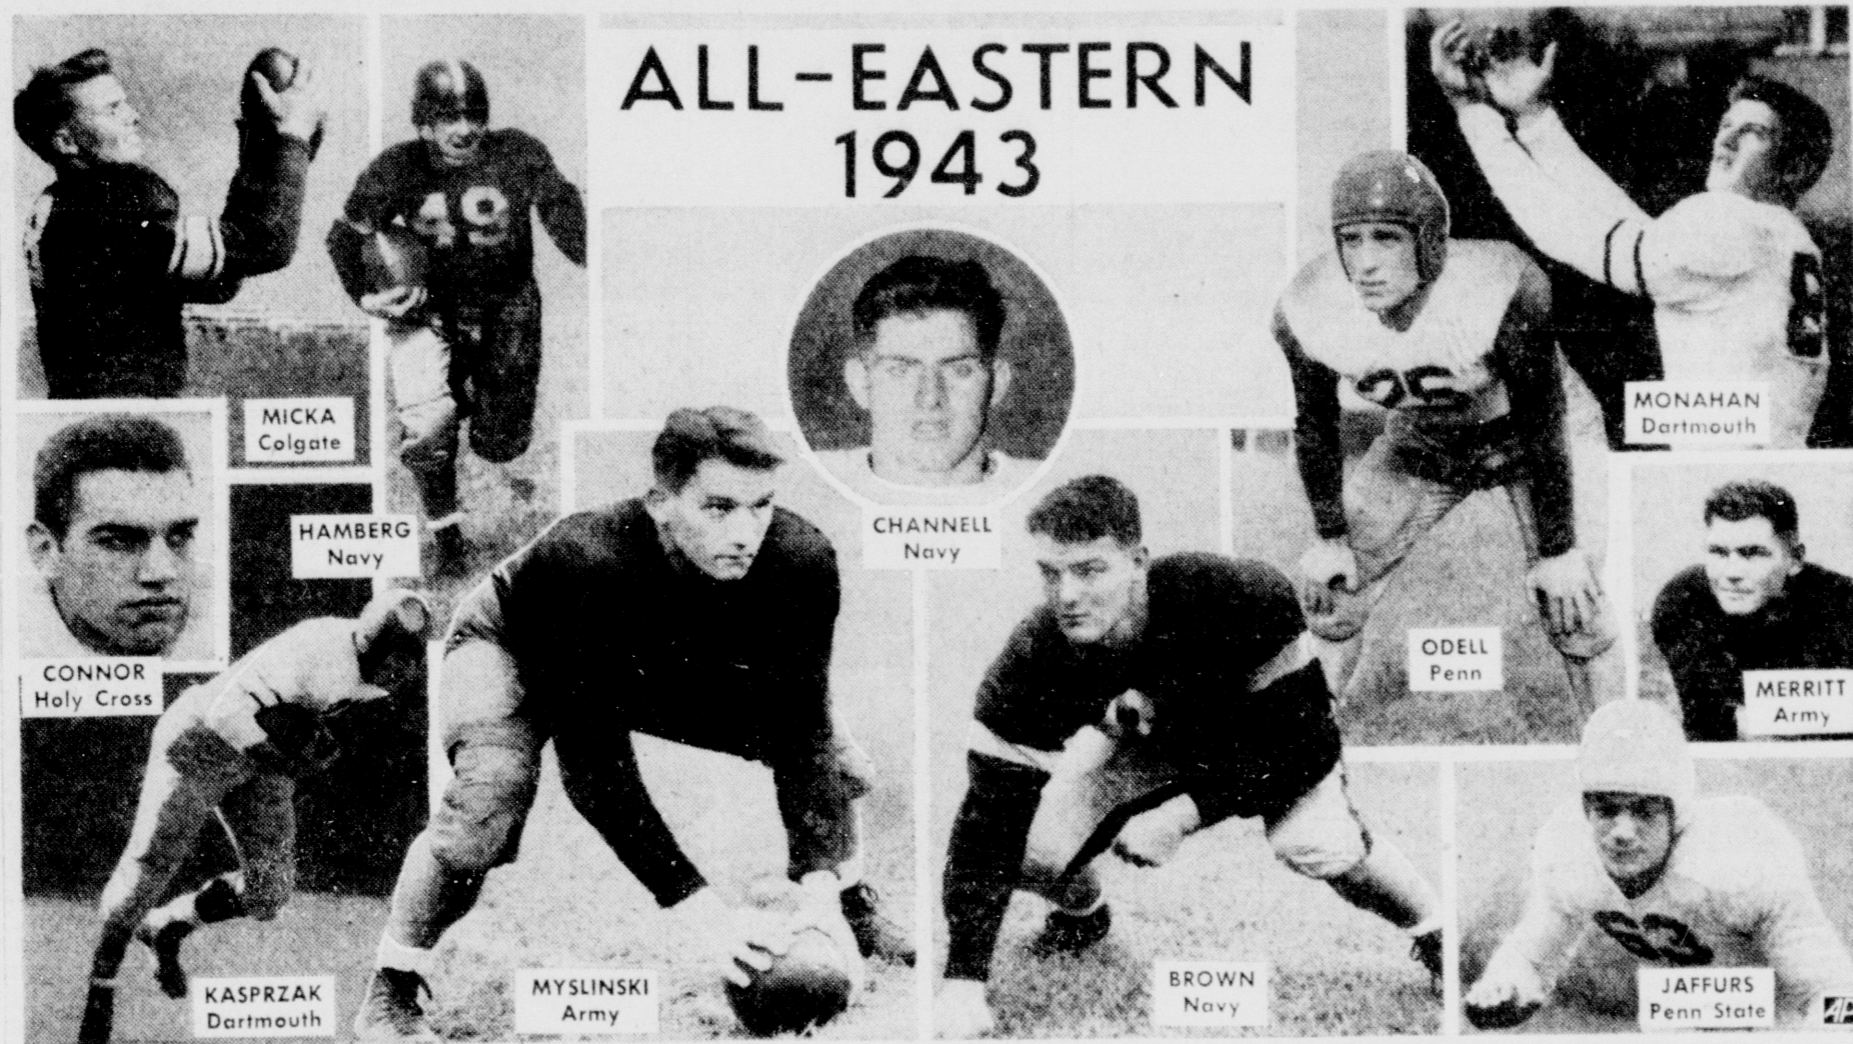

"Gentlemen, I'm happy to inform you that Herb Pennock will be the general manager of the Philadelphia Baseball Club."

Then came an engaging expression of frankness.

"Don't ask me about the Phillies," he warned. "I've only seen them play twice and I don't even know the roster. Herb will have complete charge. Until I go into the army or something he and I will consult over important moves. One

Navy, Army and Dartmouth Star on All-Eastern Team

NAVY places three men and Army and Dartmouth two each on the All-Eastern Associated Press 1943 football team. A star apiece from Penn State, Holy Cross and Colgate complete the mythical eleven.

Higher Scoring Marks Football Season This Year

Eighty-seven Teams Make 11,263 Points for 16.91 Average

By HAROLD CLAASSEN

NEW YORK, Dec. 2 (AP)—Points came as easily for the 1943 college football team as smiles do for a chorus girl and the gridiron sport enjoyed one of its greatest scoring sprees in twenty-two years.

The annual Associated Press analysis of scoring figures, which was inaugurated after the 1921 season, showed today that eighty-seven college teams scored 11,263 points in 666 games for an average of 16.91 points.

That total wiped out the sixteen-point mean of 1930 which had been the scoring barometer for the past twelve years and approached the nineteen-point goal established in 1922.

The 1942 aggregate was 15.04, the best since 1930, but it fell easily under the onslaught of the navy-strengthened eleven that dominated the sport in its second season of the present war.

Along with the average scoring per game, the team total for the season also took a decided jump. The aggregate shot to 129.46, as compared with 124.77 in 1942 of the 116.25 of 1940.

While the increase in scoring was universal, the largest increase came in the East, Southwest and parts of the Far West.

The East hiked its average from 13.12 points to 15.81 and the Southwest figures climbed from 13.50 to 15.43.

The Far West, this year including both the Pacific coast and Rocky Mountain areas, had a mean of 15.83. A year ago scoring along the coast was restricted to 12.44 points a game while the mountaineers punched over 15.70.

Midwestern teams again set the scoring pace but the percentage of their increase over the 1942 campaign was the smallest. They hiked their total of a mere one-third of a point, from 19.41 to 19.74.

Southern eleven did little better, moving from 16.11 to 16.74.

Of the teams under review, Duke's Southern Conference champions were far out in front with 335 points in nine games for an average of 37.2 in each. Among the Blue Devils' victims were North Carolina State, 75 to 0; Virginia, 49 to 0; Richmond university 61 to 0; Their only defeat was a 14 to 13 setback at the hands of the Naval Academy.

Wisconsin's clawless Badgers set the mark in reverse. They played ten rivals and were able to collect only forty-one points in all, being shut out on five consecutive Saturdays.

Toporcer Succeeds Herb Pennock

NEW YORK, Dec. 2 (AP)—George (Specs) Toporcer, one-time St. Louis Cardinal second baseman and for years a Minor League manager, today was named to succeed Herb Pennock as head of the Boston Red Sox farm system.

Toporcer, who has been a scout for the Red Sox for the past two years, was appointed to the post for a one-year term after it was turned down by Joe Reardon, business manager for the Red Sox's Eastern League farm at Scranton, Pa., and assistant to Pennock. Pennock left the Red Sox organization yesterday to become general manager of the Philadelphia Phillies.

Municipal Stadium Can Be Leased for Pro Grid Team

BALTIMORE, Dec. 2 (AP)—The city park board was ready today to welcome anyone with about $200,000 and a desire to seek a franchise in the National Professional Football League, but members would limit contracts for the municipal stadium to four or five years.

Two groups previously interested in backing a Baltimore pro club earlier had displayed little or no interest in the park board decision, one syndicate headed by Abraham Walner saying that it might require fifteen years to get the investment back.

Another group, headed by Henry M. White, said his syndicate had given up efforts to get franchise after raising $50,000 of the $200,000 judged necessary to ask for a league team.

Watner, observing that another mayor might not permit Sunday football in the stadium, said his group was ready to send a check to the National League officials later this month "but we would have to have the assurance of ten Sunday dates for a period of fifteen years."

(AP)—With the same aptitude he applied on the football field, Norman Standlee, ex-Standford U. and Chicago Bear back, tackled a seventeen-week OCS assignment at Camp Davis and was commissioned a second lieutenant at the anti-aircraft center recently. Today Standlee is battalion supply officer with the One Hundred and Eleventh A. A. Battalion.

Radio Networks Book Two New Music Features

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD
NEW YORK, Dec. 2 (AP)—The half-hour at 7:30 Friday nights on CBS which was vacated by the consolidation and condensation of Easy Aces and Mr. Keen into half-hour programs is to become musical instead of dramatic.

The new setup is Broadway Calling, in which popular music will have the right of way. It will be dispensed by a thirty-piece orchestra, a fourteen-voice chorus and soloists.

Another new program for the Friday night list is the Enno Rapee conducted Music Hall symphony with Ossy Renardy as violinist, Selma Kaye as soprano and a glee club. This program previously had been projected for Sundays, but did not jell. To get it, NBC has to be turned in at 11:30 p. m.

Aherne a Guest
Brian Aherne again steps from the films to do some broadcasting when he guests with the Friday Night Playhouse on CBS at 9. The drama will be "Journey Into Fear," a wartime yarn. The advance guest list for Stage Door Canteen, which almost always seems subject to change, contains the names of Dame May Whitty, Eric Blone and Ginny Simms. It's on CBS at 10:30.

The Blue's Spotlight bands at 9:30 will originate from an army camp near Mexico City, with the tunes supplied by Jose Marroquin's band.

Talks times: NBC 7:30 Gov. Ellis Gibbs Arnall, of Georgia, before New York Southern Society on "Postwar Responsibilities and Opportunities"; MBS 10, Walter Lippman, newspaper columnist, from Cleveland on "Birthdays of Newton

D. Baker," who was the World war secretary of war.

COUNTING MADE EASY
BIDDING by the opponents can furnish a positive guide to the play of a hand, both in showing the location of certain high cards and in exposing suit lengths. The latter factor sometimes enables you to get an exact count of the cards in the hand of one defender and by deduction just as accurate a count of the holding opposite him. It is a case of continual counting up to 13 and then subtracting. Thirteen is an unlucky number in bridge only for those who will not count that high often enough.

Off hand, when you see that dummy, you can count one loser in spades, one or two in hearts and one or two in diamonds—a maximum of five, a minimum of three. The job is to hold them down to the minimum of three. To begin with, the diamond A is pretty well marked with West from his vulnerable bidding, probably limiting the losers in that suit to one. A diminutive, eighty-four-pound woman from Greenville, Tenn., almost escaped city jail by slipping through the bars on a window, and the bars were less than six inches apart.

Injured and captured after a twenty-foot fall to the ground, the woman was hospitalized where she told officers she tried to escape because "I didn't belong in jail in the first place."

Seventh Annual C. I. O. Convention Will Open Here Monday Morning

Will Center Attention on Devising Methods for Helping More Effectively To Further War Effort, Sidney R. Katz Announces; Prominent Speakers Will Address Delegates at Three-day Meeting

The Seventh annual convention of the Maryland and District of Columbia Industrial Union Council, which will open Monday morning at 10 o'clock in the Fort Cumberland hotel, will center its attention on devising methods for helping more effectively to further the war effort, Sidney R. Katz, secretary-treasurer of the council, announced last evening.

Among the speakers at the three-day session will be Allan S. Haywood, Washington, D. C., national director of organization for the CIO and a CIO director, who will speak Tuesday; Philip Van Gelder, Camden, N. J., national secretary-treasurer of the Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers of America, scheduled for Wednesday.

James Griffiths, Wales, member of the British parliament and an official of the Miner's Federation of Great Britain, will address the convention Monday afternoon. His services were secured through the British Information Service. Griffiths will speak on the attitude of the coal miners of Great Britain toward the war. His talk, which is expected to be broadcast, will also touch on the need of international labor unity.

McCormick Will Speak
Leo H. McCormick, Baltimore, state OPA director, who will speak Monday, will discuss the present enforcement program of the Office of Price Administration.

Edward Lewis, negro, New York, director of the New York City Urban League of America, a welfare organization supported by the city, is expected to discuss the problems to be faced in adjusting the negro to industrial life.

The council, agreeing with the president that Pearl Harbor day is not a day of celebration, will dedicate itself to the objectives of the people's war against Fascism and will solidify the lines between the soldier of combat and the soldier of production.

Representatives of the armed forces will be sent to the convention from Washington to attend the Pearl Harbor Day sessions and will be guests at the banquet to be held Tuesday evening in the Queen City hotel. Army, WAC and navy personnel are expected to attend, Katz said. Wounded veterans, who are former CIO members, will address the delegates to make members conscious of the vital need for increased production.

Soldiers-WACS Invited
An invitation has been extended to the army to send a delegation of soldiers and WACS to sit in on the convention and to observe a labor convention in time of war. Corp. Richard E. Borden, this city, a member of Local 1874, TWU, and a veteran of the war, will address the delegates as a CIO member who has returned to the job after combat duty.

Mayor Thomas F. Conlon will greet the members in the name of the city when the council convenes Monday at 10 a. m.

Ulysses De Dominicis, president of the council, will deliver the annual report to the convention morning.

The report, Katz asserted, will show that the CIO is the biggest organization, labor or fraternal, in the state, and that 1943 has been the biggest year of growth the CIO has had—proof, Katz asserted, that the CIO program is sound and patriotic because it has attracted so many members to its ranks. Most of the growth, CIO officials assert, has been based on the war program.

The Rev. Joyce W. Russell, assistant pastor of St. Mary's Catholic church, will give the invocation Monday morning. Rabbi Aaron H. Lefkowitz of B'nei Chayim congregation, will give Tuesday's invocation and the Rev. Edward Bobo, pastor of Ebenezer Baptist church, is scheduled for Wednesday.

Will Serve Luncheon
Luncheon will be served for the 200 to 300 delegates in the Queen City hotel, Ralph C. Beard, Local 26, URWA, chairman of the local arrangements committee asserted.

Representatives of Local 26, United Rubber Workers of America, and Local 1874, Textile Workers of America, will join in the local observance of Pearl Harbor Day by each buying a $1,000 war bond at noon Tuesday in Fort Cumberland hotel.

Tech. Sgt. Clarence L. Biehn, army recruiter, will show patriotic motion pictures to the delegates Monday evening at 8 o'clock.

Delegates of the convention will participate in the Pearl Harbor day parade and will take part in the activities at the Maryland theater. From there they will go to the Queen City hotel for the banquet and dance.

Attendance at the convention here, though expected to be greater than in any previous convention, will be comparatively low due to war conditions, and a greater part of women delegates are expected, reflecting the large percentage of women in war plants. Most locals engaged in war work will send the minimum number of delegates, Katz said.

The convention, officials stated, is expected to be a unified delegation that will endorse the national CIO convention policies formulated at

Returns Fall Off In Sale of Seals

Only Ten Per Cent of 10,000 Persons Respond, Edwards Reports

A decided falling off in the returns of the annual Christmas Seal Sale has been noted with considerable alarm at headquarters in city hall, William J. Edwards, county chairman, announced yesterday.

"We had hoped by now to hear from at least thirty per cent of the 10,000 persons to whom we wrote and sent Christmas Seals," Edwards said. "But yesterday's returns brought the total of replies up to slightly more than ten per cent."

Twelve hundred returns have been recorded to date.

Edwards said that he trusted that this fall is only temporary, that contributors will not forget that the association must raise every dollar of its goal if the expanded wartime program is to be carried out during 1944.

A number of contributions for $25, $15 and $10 have been received to date and the smallest amount received was twenty-five cents.

One person took thirty-six of the 100 seals and returned the remaining sixty-four with thirty-six cents, stating "this is all I can afford at the present time."

As evidence of the interest shown by Allegheny county residents in the armed services, a letter from a second lieutenant in the army nurse corps, states:

"Received my Christmas seals today and was very happy my name hadn't been overlooked on the list. Being away from home makes you

A total of $78,471.96 has been raised to date in the National War Fund and Community Chest campaign, according to figures released following the noon report luncheon meeting in Central Y. M. C. A. yesterday.

With this total already in hand, $14,528.04 must be raised before the campaign comes to an end with a dinner report meeting at 6 p. m. Monday. It was originally scheduled to close tonight.

Note the seven and one half foot cages on either side of the banking room and the dark sidewalls and outmoded drop lights in the cages. Also note the frosted glass in front of each cage and the high grill work on the windows. Then cast your eyes on the picture below.

Adding to the attractiveness are new Celotex sidewalls and ceilings. Changes are in line with the policy of banks throughout the country and are designed to improve working conditions and afford closer contact with the customers. Remodeling was done by the Wilkinson Equipment Company, Philadelphia; Celotex installation by John I. Vandegrift and painting and decorating by Alf M. Pitts. No essential materials were used and excess metal from the cages was turned over to the war effort.

War Fund Drive Will Close Here On Monday Night

Campaign Is Continued To Give Ample Time for Collections

The current National War Fund and Community Chest campaign was continued until Monday night in order that the County section and the Union Industrial group will have ample time for collections, Daniel P. McMullen explained in a radio address last evening.

Originally, the drive was slated to end at a report meeting this evening, but McMullen pointed out the difficulties encountered by the county committee and the union industrial section, making it necessary to carry over the appeal until Monday.

Approximately $15,000 remains to be collected by Monday evening if the quota is to be reached but McMullen asserted "I am confident that the $93,000 can be raised."

At the noon report meeting yesterday, McMullen pointed out that $11,225.37 was actually turned in by the county area outside of Cumberland and in addition A. Charles Stewart, county chairman, reported other collections of about a thousand dollars which have not yet been reported. Thus, he said, the county area has in hand approximately fifty per cent of its $25,000 quota.

Organization Completed
In fairness to the county workers and their leader, McMullen continued, it should be explained that it was necessary in the county area to organize the campaign in twenty separate communities. As a result of the large number of places in which campaign organizations had to be established it was inevitable that some of them were not ready to begin the campaign when it opened here in Cumberland on the evening of November 22. As a matter of fact, he related, in many of the county communities actual solicitation did not get underway until November 29.

McMullen explained, however, that "all of the county communities are now fully organized, the workers in these communities are doing splendid work, and with the additional three days for the completion of the campaign I am confident the county section will reach its quota."

The Union Industrial section yesterday reported a total of $10,307.44, so that this section has now accounted for a little more than two-thirds of its quota of $15,000, McMullen said, adding that the union leaders in charge of the campaign are confident that with the additional three days now provided the union section will meet its goal.

Court Overrules Fire Pension Fund Board's Demurrer to Small's Suit

Board Granted 15 Days To Answer Ex-fireman's Disability Claims

According to a memorandum issued by Associate Judge William A. Huster in circuit court yesterday, a demurrer filed by the Fire Department Pension Fund Board of the City of Cumberland to a petition by Raymond F. Small for a writ of mandamus compelling the board to pay him permanent disability compensation was overruled.

Small had asked that the board be compelled to pay him $73.50 monthly for permanent disability which he contends resulted from an injury he received in September, 1941, while a member of the Fire department.

Salvation Army Abandons Food Basket Program

Will Issue Checks to Needy Families; Kettles To Appear Tomorrow

The Salvation Army has abandoned plans for packing and distributing food baskets during the approaching Christmas season and instead will issue food checks to needy families of Cumberland and vicinity, Capt. Robert Ball, commander, announced last evening.

Those who are registered will receive food checks which will enable them to purchase food items and use their own ration points at local stores.

The Salvation Army decided to abandon the former custom of purchasing the food and packing and delivering the baskets because of the point rationing system.

Food To Cost $400
Capt. Ball estimated that 100 families will be provided for this Christmas and the cost will be approximately $400.

Registration for Yule food checks will get under way Monday, December 6 at the Salvation Army Citadel, North Mechanic street.

Local organizations not wishing to purchase food and pack baskets for the needy this year may turn their cash donations over to The Salvation Army's Christmas Fund. Contributions may be earmarked for food, toys or treats for the kiddies and an itemized account of how the money is spent will be furnished the donors.

Kettles Appear Tomorrow
Capt. Ball said that the familiar Salvation Army kettles will make their initial appearance on the streets tomorrow and contributions will be accepted from 9:30 a. m. to 9:30 p. m. They will reappear Saturday, December 11 and will be on the streets daily except Sunday, until Christmas eve. The kettles will be located in front of four stores—Rosenbaum's, Maurice's, Murphy's and Montgomery Ward and Company.

Monies collected in the kettles is part of the annual fund raised for the purchase of food, clothing, toys and Christmas treats for needy families.

Owners Occupy First Floor
Occupying the entire first floor is the Cumberland Cloak and Suit Company store, which also extends to the lower floor of the Fort Cumberland building. Mrs. Lena Kauffman and her husband, the Jacob Kauffman, came here from Philadelphia in 1927 and established their business which has greatly expanded over a period of sixteen years.

David Kauffman is a well known local attorney, occupying a suite of rooms on the second floor of the building and L. Harry Kauffman is now in the army and is located at Camp Lee, Va.

Walsh. The property was later purchased by James Clark and Col. John Keating.

The building will be run under the partnership name of The Kauffman Realty Company and changes are contemplated, according to the attorney for the purchasers.
